SAFETY ALERT: HURRICANE SEASON

Hurricane season begins in June.

For your safety and the safety of your family, prepare for emergency conditions before they occur:

- Gather emergency supplies, such as a battery-powered radio, flashlights, lanterns, and batteries.
- Store enough water, non-perishable food, and medicine for your family members and pets to last seven days.
- Monitor Emergency Alert System broadcasts for information on an approaching hurricane and the shelters that will be opened. If you need to evacuate, shut off your home's incoming electricity at the main breaker or switch.
- Consider having a backup generator if you are dependent on an electrically powered life support system. Or, plan to go to a suitable location where electricity will be available. Take medical equipment and medications with you.

For more safety tips, refer to Hawaiian Electric's Information Handbook for Emergency Preparedness at www.hawaiianelectric.com, or call 543-7511.

Cool Your Schools – With a Little Help From Nature

Urban forestry cost-share grant program helps schools plant trees

Another long-lasting and economical tool to help schools keep their classrooms cool is by planting shade trees in strategic locations on school campuses to maximize their shading and cooling potential.

The Kaulunani Urban and Community Forestry Program and the Department Division of Forestry and Wildlife are offering an opportunity for Hawai'i schools to help cool campuses and improve student's health and wellbeing as well as learning and behavior outcomes. The newly launched "Cool Your School" cost-share grant program offers funding for schools to plant trees on campus with technical support on their care and maintenance.

Classroom air temperatures have become a valid point of concern for teachers in Hawai'i with some classroom temperatures reaching the high 90's. Almost any sunny day you can drive by a school and if students are outside they are often congregated under the cool shade of a tree. Schools, with proper planning, can make use of nature's own "air conditioner" - trees!

Studies have shown that trees can cool a classroom by up to 10 °F. Trees block penetrating direct sunlight, reducing ambient temperatures and the process of transpiration uses up solar energy that would otherwise heat the air. The calming effect of trees also promotes additional learning, behavioral and health benefits such as higher scores on standardized testing, fewer disciplinary problems, lower levels of stress, better concentration and fewer sick days.

Applications are being accepted on a rolling basis. The Kaulunani Council will review pre-proposals and selected schools will be asked to submit a full proposal. Kaulunani staff will work with the selected schools to assist with tree selection, locations for planting trees, cost estimates and preparation of the grant application.

North Shore Outdoor Circle Keeping Up With Community Concerns

The Shops At Anahulu

This proposed development at Loko'Ea Fishpond was brought to our attention in September 2015. In October, the NSOC Board voted to support the use of land around Loko'Ea Pond as a cultural and educational site for the community as well as protection of scenic views as stated in the North Shore Sustainable Communities Plan.

NSSCP-Panoramic views throughout the region are identified on the Open Space Map. The significant scenic views that should be protected and enhanced include the following: Mauka views along Kamehameha Highway of Anahulu Stream and Loko Ea Pond.

We have urged the landowner, Queen Liliuokalani Trust (QLT), to conserve the land, protect the view plane of Loko'Ea Pond from Kamehameha Hwy and cancel plans for a retail development. We presented information to officials of QLT on possible ways they could conserve the land without losing the revenue they need for their mission. We have made our position clear to the community, to QLT and to our elected officials. However, QLT continues to state that they want to go forward with the planned retail development despite opposition from many members of the community. This is very disappointing.

On April 19, 2016, the Department of Planning and Permitting (DPP) held a hearing in Haleiwa to receive community input on the proposed developer's request for a Special Management Area Use Permit. Testimony was mostly opposed to the development and was finally cut off after three hours. Over a dozen more people submitted written testimony opposing the permit. Shortly thereafter, DPP submitted a report acknowledging the concerns about the view-shed encroachment, the cultural sensitivity of the location and the potential impacts on the environment; but they recommended that the permit be approved anyway.

The Chevron station that was demolished on this site in 2008 left substantial soil contamination. Chevron has still not completed remediation of the damage and is still paying ground rent to QLT. The State Health Dept. must sign off on the completion of soil remediation before any construction can take place at this site. Approval of this permit will be considered by the full City Council at its next meeting on July 6. This will be a chance for concerned residents to attend the hearing and express their views. Those who can't attend can submit written testimony online regarding Resolution 16-133 through the City Council Website: http://www.honolulu.gov/council.

To date the NSOC role has been to advocate for preservation of the open space and view plane and to facilitate discussion between the landowner, surrounding landowners and developer in the hope of a win-win alternative for land conservation. With the help of Council Chair Ernie Martin, we were able to bring all parties to a meeting on Thursday, June 2 with the North Shore Community Land Trust to discuss how land conservation could meet the financial needs of QLT. However, officials of QLT were still not willing to consider alternatives to their planned retail development.

NSOC now must decide what further steps we should take to continue to pursue our goal of conserving this open space and view plane in such a significant historic location.

Elimination of Neighborhood Boards?

The North Shore Outdoor Circle strongly opposes the idea of eliminating Neighborhood Boards and has sent testimony stating our position. As a community based organization ourselves, we value the interaction with our neighborhood boards. It is a place where we can get the word out about our mission to preserve open space, view planes, and cultural resources, and our mission to control sign clutter and support beautification projects. Another important element to meeting personally with members of the community is the chance to hear our neighbor's voices and opinions on community projects or ongoing issues we may have missed.

Haleiwa Special District Amendment

Since 1984 Haleiwa has been designated as a Special District in the Land Use Ordinance of the City and County of Honolulu in order to preserve its unique and historic character. We support the efforts of Council Chair Ernie Martin to make amendments to the Ordinance to better regulate the proliferation of food trucks in the Haleiwa Special District. The proposed amendments to the Haleiwa Special District Ordinance have been introduced at City Council as Resolution 16-42.

We have also recommended further revisions:

- (1) Require that any signs posted on food trucks be permitted under the city sign ordinance like any other commercial sign.
- (2) Prohibit food trucks from parking in locations that block the view of mountain, ocean or historic sites listed in the Haleiwa Town Historic walking tour brochure.
- (3) Put limitations on advertising signs displayed on vehicles parked in public beach parking stalls.

We feel that these changes will help accomplish our goals to control sign clutter and protect important view planes.

The Beach House

We have been keeping informed with the issues this new business is facing as they unfold. Among the notices of violations that Mr. Anderson received was a No Permit for the Restaurant Sign, which places this issue in our purview. We're happy with the action from the health department, shutting down the restaurant after the media covered the story, however it is disappointing that it took so drastic a measure to get action when the notice of violations was out last month.

Haleiwa Arts Festival

Our community is facing many changes and we're always ready and happy to talk story with you about them. We hope you'll stop by our table in the community booth at the Haleiwa Arts Festival July16-17 2016 to learn more about what we do and how you can get involved.

NSOC will continue to uphold our 104 year-old motto: To Keep Hawaii, Clean, Green and Beautiful. We appreciate the advocacy that comes from all of the wonderful community groups and citizens. Lucky we Live North Shore!

WAIALUA HIGH & INTERMEDIATE SCHOOL IM-PROVEMENTS

Within the past several weeks, I have participated in two meetings at Waialua High and Intermediate School (WHIS) to discuss desired improvements to school facilities as well as developing an education plan. Some of these include improvements such as an "Innovation Technology Center," will help strengthen the programs at WHIS.

Improving a school takes a lot of collaboration – it is no easy process.

These first meetings included members of the school community council, school administration, faculty, staff, coaches, parents, volunteers, business leaders and legislators. This team aims to support the mission of the school and help deliver high quality education at WHIS. This effort is being led by Ms. Marilee Lyons, Ms. Judy Tanabe and Dr. Pat Gilbert, among many other leaders. Thank you for your dedication!

With focused and prioritized coordination, I believe that WHIS can enhance its services to students, staff and the community alike.

EDUCATION SUMMIT – JULY 9th, 2016

Governor Ige's "Every Student Succeeds Act" (ESSA) Team invites all who are concerned about education in Hawai'i to participate in the 2016 Hawaii Education Summit to be held at the Hawaii Convention Center on Saturday, July 9, 2016 from 8:00 am to 3:30 pm.

This is a free event for students, teachers, principals, parents, business leaders, and community members. However, there is limited space – so I recommend registering as soon as possible. Participants will:

(1) Learn from inspiring leaders, policy experts, and education leaders on ESSA and best practices,

- (2) Engage in forums on key education topics and issues, and
- (3) Collaborate with others on the exciting possibilities for a future-focused education system.

To register, visit http://governor.hawaii.gov/essa-team/ and click on the appropriate link.

REINTRODUCE VOCATIONAL TRAINING PROGRAMS

At the recent WHIS meetings, I heard concerns from community members about how vocational training could be re-vitalized or re-emphasized. That discussion reminded me of past legislative session and our Vocational Training legislation (HCR 103). It is true that not all of our high school graduates go on to four-year colleges. With the passage of HCR 103, it is my desire to re-emphasize the vocational career pathway program in public schools, providing a more well-rounded curriculum for students. The curriculum would allow students to get hands on, real world experience in preparing them for a potential career soon after or right out of high school.

A challenge that our schools face is that when student population at a school is low, that decreases the amount of funding that a school has to fund vocational programs. Unfortunately, schools such as Waialua and Kahuku High and Intermediate, do not typically have as high student populations to necessarily support the fiscal needs of a vibrant vocational program. In this challenge, creative collaboration is key to coming up with ways for schools like ours to have programs similar to those of schools such as Waipahu High School.

Creative collaboration can work, as seen with KFAST – Kahuku Facilities Advancement Support Team as well as the Keep Laie Cool initiative. My work with these organizations is ongoing, but I am excited to contribute to initiatives like those growing in Waialua. The key in these initiatives is the organization and willpower of those community members who give their time, talents and other resources to improving education in our community.

Ki'i Nani-Where Passion and Innovation Take Shape

Karin "Bo" Bergemann recently opened her doll studio and gallery, Ki'i Nani (meaning "beautiful likeness"), 66-437 Kamehameha Highway, to share her artistry with island visitors and residents alike. Her shop and teaching studio adjacent to the Haleiwa Post Office is open 11 a.m. – 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays, except occasionally when she is away for a show. Bo may be contacted via text message at (808) 330-2543; or via e-mail at bobergmann@mac.com. Her website is www.BergemannDolls.com.

Bo specializes in the "BJD" doll – a ball jointed doll she sculpts and details from start to finish. Each doll is made with several pieces. Most have anywhere from 14 to more than 17 joints, so they pretty much move like humans do. As reportedly only one of 11 sources in the world offering BJD dolls, she is recognized internationally in doll magazines, shows and conventions. Clearly, she is a subject matter expert.

According to Bo, Hawaii has not had a doll shop for more than 20 years. Ki'i Nani features her heirloom quality collectable dolls for the discerning artist. In addition, it provides a wide variety of doll brands and accessories, including clothing and furniture, that range from the affordable to high end and serves collectors from two years old to 92. In addition, Bo teaches doll making classes for enthusiasts of all ages and skill levels.

She grew up in Maui and attended University of Hawaii in Manoa. At UH she earned both Pre-Med Bachelor of Science and Public Relations Bachelor of Arts degrees. Her husband, Jeff, also from Maui, followed her and opened Maui Off Road Center on Oahu. Although they had intended to have children, they found they could not. Not to be discouraged, Bo fervently dedicated herself as a foster parent, specializing in caring for premature and fragile babies.

Early on, when arrangements for adopting one of her foster children fell through, Bo's resiliency endured. She immersed herself into finishing the doll she had started for the baby she had intended to adopt. As she lovingly crafted the body and meticulously designed the little dress, her talent slowly took shape. Over the next 15 years providing foster care, she and her husband adopted three—Kaleo, now 21; Jacob, now 18; and Bree, now 15. As her own children grew older, she decided to become more involved in school and community activities and leave foster care behind. That was when she started her business 6½ years ago.

Looking back, she realizes that creating her unique dolls is a culmination of all she has learned and experienced over the years combined with her passion. Now, with the opening of Ki'i Nani, she seizes the opportunity to share her distinctive artistry and enjoyment with others.

Sinusitis In Children

Acute bacterial sinusitis occurs in about 6 to 7% of children with upper respiratory infections (colds). Colds have a predictable pattern of symptoms. Fever may occur in the first 1-2 days. Other symptoms may also occur: runny nose, congestion, cough, sore throat, fatigue, headache, decreased appetite and muscle aches. Nasal discharge is usually clear, but may thicken the next few days and then clear up toward the end of the cold. A cold is caused by a virus and usually runs its full course in 7-10 days.

Children with acute bacterial sinusitis have persistent symptoms, such as congestion and cough exceeding 10 days and not improving. What can be tricky is deciding whether symptoms are from the same cold or did the child get better and then catch a second cold. Another consideration is allergies, which trigger a cough and runny nose that can persist for weeks. Uncontrolled allergies may also be the cause of sinusitis. Or, is it a foreign body in the child's nose? It is not unusual for siblings to stick a small toy or food up a child's nose. Can the persistent cough be pertussis? Sometimes, parents state that a child's eyes have swelled up and become "goupy." If other causes have been eliminated we are probably dealing with a sinus infection.

In many ways, a child's symptoms are similar to an adult with sinusitis. The difference is that an adult can articulate his/her symptoms, like "There's a lot of pressure and pain over my face and my upper teeth hurt." The treatment in both populations is similar. Amoxacillen or Augmentin usually work, although the bacteria causing some sinus infections may have developed some resistance to Amoxacillen. In patients allergic to penicillin, another antibiotic has to be substituted. Aside from targeting the bacteria, you need to clear the congestion. Antihistiamines, like Benedryl, Claitin and Zytec (all over the counter) can help. In young children, squirting saline into the nostril thins the thick mucus. In older children, decongestants help.

Community Asks Government to Remain Vigilant to Prevent Further Harm

The State Department of Health ("DOH") closed the 388-seat Haleiwa Beach House ("Restaurant") in dramatic fashion on June 2 suspending Food Establishment Permit Number 031098 based on a finding that the Restaurant's "wastewater system is causing an imminent threat to public health by spilling wastewater onto a neighboring property used by children for educational purposes."

The closure occurred just as the Honolulu Liquor Commission was completing a closed door Executive Session considering the Restaurant's liquor license application. Upon hearing the suspension and closure news the Commission deferred its decision-making until August 18 – well after the Restaurant's current temporary liquor license expires on June 30.

Then on June 7 the DOH allowed the Restaurant to reopen with the seating capacity previously approved in the 2013 DOH variance for the Restaurant's existing septic system. The DOH stated "The restaurant is allowed to operate with a seating capacity of 83 dining seats and 31 bar chairs" and "additional fluorescein dye testing may be performed at any time" to further determine if the Restaurant's Individual Wastewater System ("IWS") is not adequately managing the Restaurant's wastewater discharges. Such testing could result in a further Restaurant closure.

Members of the community are grateful the DOH and the City and County of Honolulu Department of Planning and Permitting ("DPP") are doing their jobs to protect the health, safety, and welfare of the public by issuing Notices of Violation, Citations, and Administrative Orders of Consent to the Haleiwa Beach House that substantiate concerns first raised by residents.

The agencies' recent actions serve to fill gaps in the regulatory and permitting systems that previously were unable to identify, eliminate, or minimize the adverse effects resulting from the incompatible scale, cumulative impacts, and intensity of the unpermitted uses taking place at this sensitive location adjacent to Loko Ea Stream, Loko Ea Fishpond, Haleiwa Beach Park, and Waialua Bay.

However, additional regulatory scrutiny must be instituted to address the on-going violations, unpermitted activities in the Special Management Area (SMA) and Haleiwa Special Design District, as well as the restaurant's intensive and illegal commercial use of the adjacent 3.4 acre City and County of Honolulu Department of Parks and Recreation ("DPR") land.

Health and safety are the primary concerns for children and families that utilize the adjacent stream, fishpond, beach, park, and ocean areas and these concerns should drive DPP and DOH to further action.

One clue to understanding the fiasco and slow-motion disaster at the Haleiwa Beach House is the following excerpt from the 2013 DOH variance (Docket No. 12-VWW-10) for the existing septic system designed to handle the effluent of 114 customers: "Based on the volume of sewage effluent generated the existing lot area is less than than required in the DOH Administrative Rules."

A quick glance at an aerial photo demonstrates that the footprint of the Restaurant takes up roughly half of the diminutive 23,552 square foot property it sits on. The City's on-line GIS system, as well as the Restaurant's own schematics and maps, clearly illustrate encroachment of the Restaurant building (and possibly of the septic system) onto the neighboring Kamehameha Schools land.

The effects of cramming these intensive uses into the small property help explain the principal problem underlying the development of a new 388 seat capacity restaurant in such tight quarters.

Fortunately, at least three different government agencies charged with protecting the public interest are working to untangle this mess.

The DOH is seeking to ensure that the Restaurant is not contaminating or polluting the water, does not give rise to public nuisance, and does not become a hazard to the public health, safety, and welfare again. The DPP is administering and enforcing ordinances and regulations governing the development and use of land, various codes pertaining to the construction of the building, and City standards and regulations pertaining to infrastructure requirements. In conjunction with these activities, the Honolulu Liquor Commission is protecting the community's health, safety, and welfare by administering and enforcing Hawaii's liquor laws in its review of the liquor license application of the Haleiwa Beach House.

Another key to the conundrum these agencies are working to unravel is the fact that the transformation of the Haleiwa Beach House over the seven-month period from August 2015 to March 2016 involved work far beyond what the owner described in permit applications.

For example, it is documented in DOH and DPP citations that the completed renovations added area for 274 new seats and completely new kitchen, bathroom, and floor areas.

In striking contrast, the permit applications merely described work such as: "new decorative railing;" "repair and reconstruct the existing old ADA access ramp and stair entry;" "existing awning will be extended;" "some exterior alterations;" and "existing CMU wall, adjacent to the ADA access ramp will be covered with moss rock."

Given these circumstances, the public is relying on the government agencies to continue to perform their duties to protect the public interest in the following ways:

1. In light of the Notice of Violation the DPP has already issued (2016/NOV-04-179), the DPP must issue corresponding Notices of Violation to the Haleiwa Beach House for Special District (Haleiwa) 2015/SS-25 (SDD) and Special Management Area (SMA) 2015/SMA-30.

In addition, the DPP must require Haleiwa Beach House to submit an application for a Major SMA permit given the scope, scale, cumulative impacts, and intensity of the development completed to date. Adverse effects of the development have already been documented and the DOH renewed its requirement that the project include a Wastewater Treatment Plant given the increased size of the restaurant operation.

2. Taking into account the documented wastewater spill and the Restaurant's violations, the DOH should reanalyze both the associated documentation and appropriateness of the 2013 DOH variance for this property given the sensitive location.

DOH granted the variance in 2013 even though the lot was approximately 20,648 square feet too small under DOH standards. In short, the property the Restaurant sits on is only large enough to support the wastewater generated by roughly 60 seats under DOH requirements.

3. Given the public outcry and continued regulatory concerns surrounding Haleiwa Beach House, its wastewater discharge, and the potential effects on residents and children in the community, the Director of the DOH should utilize her power under HAR Section 11-62-10 to hold a public hearing and/or public informational meeting in the North Shore community so that residents may be fully briefed on the circumstances related to the wastewater discharge and so that the Director may be fully able to assess the points above.

One of the effects of the wastewater spill is that Malama Loko Foundation was forced to suspend all water-based stream and fishpond activities for all volunteers, staff, and community. The Foundation is now forced to create completely different educational activities for the over 2,000 students that are coming to the fishpond this summer.

A community meeting will be in the public interest and can assist families in making decisions about the health and safety of their families as they consider when and whether to enter the waters related to Loko Ea Stream and Waialua Bay. In addition, collecting the input of affected families and those with direct knowledge of the surrounding environment, resources, and local tidal/ocean/soil/water table/weather conditions could help guide DOH's decisions on these matters.

4. The Liquor Commission should not approve a liquor license for the Haleiwa Beach House until the Restaurant is able to demonstrate compliance with important City and State laws geared toward protecting the health and safety of the public.

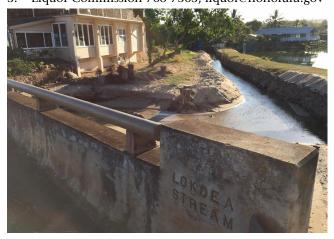

According to the City and County of Honolulu Rules of the Liquor Commission Chapter 84 Duties of and Supervision Over Licensee Section 3-84-72. Condition of Premises and Section 3-84-72.1. Sanitation Requirements. "The licensee shall also comply with all rules of the State Department of Health."

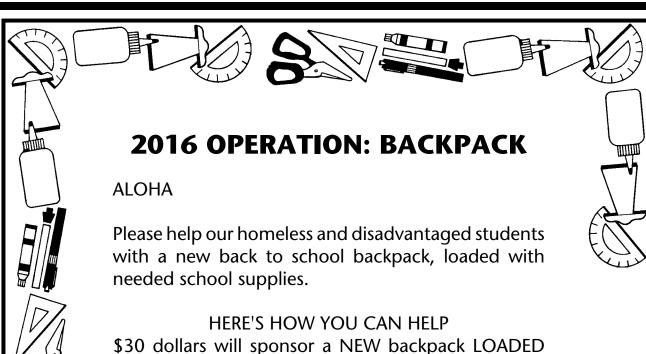

The DOH Cease and Desist Order (NVPSO No. 16-SAN-WW-EO-01) makes it clear the Restaurant was not complying with DOH rules. Further, according to Chapter 281 Hawaii Revised Statutes Liquor Laws of Hawaii PART IV. Procedure for Obtaining License. Section 281-51 Prior Inspection. No license shall be issued under this chapter unless the licensee is suitable for carrying on the business in a reputable way. Some residents believe it is difficult for the Restaurant to be cited by DOH and DPP and to also be "suitable for carrying on the business in a reputable way."

The landowner told the Pacific Business News in November 2015 they "went a little crazy" in creating the new Restaurant. Therefore, the public needs the government to be vigilant to prevent further harm to the community until all of these unfortunate circumstances are comprehensively addressed.

You can reach out to the following to request they remain vigilant in protecting the public in this matter:

- 1. Director of DOH, Virginia Pressler 586-4410, webmail@doh.hawaii.gov
- 2. Director of the DPP, George Atta 768-8000, dpp@honolulu.gov
- 3. Liquor Commission 768-7363, liquor@honolulu.gov

SURF N SEA NORTH SHORE SWIM SERIES KICKS INTO GEAR

The first race of the North Shore Swim Series. The Aloha Salads one mile ocean swim from Sunset Beach to Ehukai Beach Park was a fast race with a great north east current and big shore break, one of the fastest races yet. The Summer Sprint is part of the Waikiki Swim clubs open ocean races. This year seasoned swimmer, Jason Hagi had the overall fastest time (19:53.9) and has won the event series two times before. He hopes this will be his third. The overall Women's winner was 17 year old Cameron Lyon from Kailua with a time of 20:44.2. There were over 650 swimmers in the race! The North Shore's John Lobdell was listed as the first Haleiwa swimmer to come in at a time of 23:28.6. Complete Results can be found at : http://www.timelinehawaii.com/Results/Sprint%20 Ovrerall%2015.htm

UNCLE RABBIT'S LAST GO OUT

Rabbit Kekai was a mentor to all his surfers that checked info their heats through his later years as head beach marshall. In the early days he learned to surf his own style dropping in behind the curl on shorter boards, starting the short board revolution. He will be remembered for his innovative style and his spirit of aloha that never wavered. A paddle out is scheduled for June 25th, 7am, behind Duke's Restaurant in Waikiki. Uncle Rabbit always had a good joke, so bring plenty in memory of the beach boy and an era past.

SUMMER SOLTICE

Summer officially starts on June 20th. So far surf has been ridable on the North and East shores, a few swells in town have kept us interested! Summer on the North Shore means it is time to do some other sports and its time for some music. The summer concert series starts happening at Waimea Bay Park on June 25th. Banzai Productions Media will be there to promote their show FlHi Girls Surfing & Sports and lots of prizes will be on hand so hope you join us for a fun filled day with great Hawaiian music!

WAVE PARKS ON THE WEST SIDE

Big wave surfer Brian Kealuana and business partner Keno Knieriem have had discussions recently about their Honokea surf park, proposed for Kalaloa in West Oʻahu. Honokea is the first company to secure U.S. rights to the Spanish engineered Wave Garden technology which offers challenging waves for pros and gentle ones for amateurs. The other project is being developed by Surf City Hui LLC. They are looking at a West Oʻahu resort featuring 400 rooms around a 4 acre surfing wave pool, themed after the classic surf movie "The Endless Summer". They are currently in negotiations for a site here and have already begun a surf park in Austin Texas sated to open this year.

Integrated Pest Management at Waimea Valley

By Peter McLean, Horticultural Specialists, Waimea Valley, North Shore of O`ahu

Spring is drawing to a close and the heat of summer is now upon us. During this time of year at Waimea Valley Botanical Garden we anticipate and prepare for the annual onslaught of seasonal pests. The weedy plants grow faster, the insect populations explode and plant diseases proliferate. We have adopted a number of effective strategies to deal with individual pests in a holistic way, which is referred to as Integrative Pest Management (IPM).

At the first sign of an aphid or mealy bug infestation it can be tempting to spray the most powerful pesticide you can find to deal with it quickly; however, using full-spectrum pesticides usually has the opposite effect due to the nature of predator/prey reproduction. Herbivorous insects, such as aphids and mealy bugs, reproduce rapidly and typically lead to a "boom" in numbers. Predators, such as wasps, reproduce at a slower rate and invest more energy in to less offspring. When applying a full spectrum pesticide you kill almost every insect in the area, including the beneficial insects keeping pests in check. This creates a fault in the natural cycle which is filled by an explosion of unwanted pests prompting yet another round of pesticide use. This leads to a scenario where predatory insects never reach a number in population to effectively control the pests and you become stuck in a perpetual loop of pesticide use. The same is true for fast growing weeds and rapidly spreading plant diseases.

The first step to controlling pests is to know your enemy. Once you correctly identify the pest you can select a strategy that only targets that specific pest and doesn't hurt anything else. For example, we use Neem Oil (organic) as a systemic pesticide because it only targets insects that chew or suck on our sensitive plants. These chemicals get in to the vascular system of the plant and kill any insect that bites on the leaves or the stems, thereby only targeting specific pests while leaving all of the beneficial insects. Ordinary dish soap spray (2-3% solution) is very effective at killing soft bodied pests such as aphids and white flies. To control slugs and snails you can create a "trap" by laying down cardboard near your plants. The slugs and snails will all hide under the cardboard making them easy targets for control. Also, they are repelled by copper surfaces, so we line our nursery tables with copper tape to keep them out (This works great for raised beds as well). In order to control fast growing weeds, such as guinea grass and honohono, we use a sheet mulch method where we smother the weeds with layers of cardboard (tape removed) and then pile on lots of wood chips (so you can't even tell the cardboard is there). To control nematodes we companion plant with plants that repel them, such as marigolds and Crotolaria (Sun Hemp). These plants are also hosts for beneficial insects that improve the health of the garden. To reduce the occurrence of mold and fungus we use compost tea foliar sprays that keep the plants microbial community healthy, thereby reducing the niche that fungus and mold might otherwise fill.

The list of strategies is endless but they all share one thing in common: they were developed by observing nature and how pests are kept in balance in the natural world. So the next time a plant or insect pest pops up in your garden, observe its cycle so you can create your own effective strategy to control it. Encourage the conditions it does not like while limiting the conditions in which it thrives. The best management practice would be to emulate nature and adopt ecological principles in our gardening practices then we are working with nature instead of fighting against it. Growing Chocolate in Waialua can be a Sweet Deal

Clements and Jeanne "Jay" Bennett just won first place with their very first harvest in the Big Island Chocolate Festival, to their surprise. Inexperience, rose beetles, drought, weeds and cancer plagued the couple survived the first two years but they persevered on the five acres they bought on Kaukonahua Road in Waialua. More than once they thought of abandoning the field. "We originally didn't even know what to grow so I researched it." Says Bennett. "We wanted to be farmers and Chocolate beans made the most sense. The world supply is in danger, picking the big pods is less labor intensive, the trees are pretty and make good wildlife habitat, and you get to eat chocolate!" she laughs. Avid wildlife enthusiasts, the two added a pond, aviaries, planted Koa trees and other native species and ornamental biodiversified gardens. "We hope all our neighbors grow chocolate, making this the next Napa Valley of chocolate. Growing such high quality beans, this area is just begging for this crop, which has very limited areas it can grow world wide. What else can you grow profitably on land that costs$200,000 an acre besides chocolate, which can give returns of $22 a pound for dry bean nibs? If enough of us do this it will be a world class destination for chocolate tasting."

"If we do ag tours when our gardens fill in, we can 1st time farmers and wildlife advocates Bruce show people how nature can be a part of a farm and ments and Jeanne "Jay" Bennett just won first not something you fight against. Growing chocolate can be a sweet deal!"
