New Park Rules for the Sale or Distribution of Expressive Materials

As of September 8, 2017, the Department of Parks and Recreation has adopted new rules and repealed the prior "Rules and Regulations Governing the Sale of Message-bearing Merchandise by Nonprofit Organizations in City Parks and Facilities."

The new rules under Honolulu Administrative Rules Title 19, Chapter 18 entitled "Sale or Distribution of Expressive Materials" is now in effect at city parks.

Under the new rules, expressive materials are permitted for sale and distribution. Expressive materials are defined as any written or printed material containing political, religious, philosophical or ideological messages. This includes, but is not limited to: books, pamphlets, handbills, cards, circulars, pictures, magazines, and leaflets.

Another change to the rules is that sale of items defined as merchandise is prohibited. The items include, but are not limited to: food, drink, coffee mugs, beverage containers, sunglasses, flags, records, patches, maps, jewelry, handicraft, decals, audio or video tapes, shirts, hats, ties, shorts, footwear or any other clothing article.

Sales permits approved under the old rules for the month of September 2017, prior to the implementation of the new rules, will be honored.

Other rules for permitted sales within parks, such as those outlined by temporary concession permits and designated concessionaire agreements, are not affected by these new rules as they do not apply to the sale and distribution of expressive materials in conjunction with a First Amendment activity.

Also under the new rules, a permit is necessary for use of a portable table, within a designated area, for the purposes of selling or distributing expressive materials. No other structure, equipment or park surface such as chairs, display mats, shelving, umbrellas, tents, canopies, podiums or platforms can be used to sell or distribute expressive materials on park land. The designated areas are located where there will be minimal impact to other park functions and facilities. The portable tables and all materials must be removed from the site each day and nothing can be stored at the park location. Permit applications for these activities will not be accepted more than a year before the proposed request date and cannot be used for a period lasting longer than 14 days.

The Department of Parks and Recreation reserves the right to seize and dispose of any merchandise being sold or distributed on park land in violation of these rules.

The new rules are available online at parks.honolulu.gov in the "Rules & Regulations" section.

Well, it's that time of the year. Most dental insurance have a maximum annual dollar limit they will pay each year. The rollover date is usually January 1st. Improve your health while saving money or setting up an exam and cleaning appointment today. Please do not wait until December as often there are not enough appointments to accommodate everyone. Waiting until January may result in more personal expense. Call your dental health provider to make the most of you dental benefits.

New Outreach Specialist at Kaena Point State Park

In the wake of the horrendous slaughter of albatross in late 2015, I introduced legislation to place educational and enforcement personnel at Kaena State Park. During its hearing in committee, SB3065 helped draw attention to the shortage of enforcement officers throughout Hawaii and drew special attention to the need for active, personal outreach at Kaena Point.

Following the 2016 session, the Department of Land and Natural Resources re-allocated funds within its Division of Forestry and Wildlife to hire a new outreach and education specialist for Kaena Point. Jaime Raduenzel is that person.

Jaime engages residents and visitors to help them avoid destructive activities such as mud bogging and off-road driving that rips up vegetation and causes erosion harmful to the reefs. She ensures compliance with the vehicle permit system and helps keep an eye on endangered and threatened species. Jaime has already secured grants for new projects that will benefit the park.

The outreach specialist has far more work to do than any person could possibly accomplish alone, so she is looking for volunteers who may be interested in joining various work days to remove invasive plants, protect native species, and other tasks. There are some positive improvements to vegetation and the coastline beyond the gate, but there is still much work to be done. Volunteers are encouraged to email their name, contact information and interests to Jaime.L.Raduenzel@hawaii.gov

Of course, this work builds upon the efforts of so many community members and volunteers who came before and continue to protect this area. The Kaena Point Natural Area Reserve has rebounded wonderfully with vegetation and wildlife since the construction of the predator fence. Army Beach is much nicer since vehicular access was restricted and the vegetation has returned.

Vehicular access beyond the end of the paved road has been managed through a gate and permitting system established in 2014. Permits are free and easy to request through DLNR.hawaii.gov/dsp/oahu. The dirt and rocky road is only suitable for four-wheel drive vehicles, yet more than 6000 vehicles are now registered. No permits are necessary to walk into the gated section of the park.

More and more people come to this area every day. What was once a quiet, almost desolate, stretch of coastline is now enjoyed by thousands of beachgoers every weekend. Some folks are unaware of the hazards left behind by bonfires like hot coals and hidden nails. Others do not realize the threat dogs pose to endangered birds. Thankfully, we now have a specialist on the job to kindly educate people and to foster better management of this precious asset, Kaena Point State Park.

My phone number is 586-7330. My email address is SenRiviere@capitol.hawaii.gov. Follow us on Facebook or online at SenatorRiviere.com. Please visit us in Room 217 at the Capitol; or let's talk closer to home, maybe the next time we pass in the street. Mahalo.

Ask the Doctor

Jason Hughes
Chief Medical Officer
Kahuku Medical Center

Q: Is sleep apnea dangerous?

It can be if it's left untreated. You may have heard that Carrie Fisher, the Star Wars heroine, died in part from complications associated with sleep apnea.

Sleep apnea occurs when a person's breathing is interrupted during sleep. People with the disorder stop breathing repeatedly, starving their brain and body from oxygen. Sleep apnea can affect anyone at any age, even children.

The most common sign of sleep apnea is chronic loud snoring. Other signs are daytime sleepiness, restless sleep, waking up with a very sore or dry throat or morning headaches. Ask your bed partner if he or she has noticed that you snore, choke, gasp or seem to stop breathing during sleep.

Sleep apnea is serious and can cause a number of health problems including high blood pressure, stroke, heart failure, irregular heartbeats, heart attacks, diabetes, depression, headaches and worsening ADHD. It may also affect work and school activities and academic underachievement in children and adolescents.

Please talk with your physician if you think you have a problem. Your doctor may recommend a sleep study (at home or at a sleep disorder center) to help with the diagnosis.

Thankfully there are ways to fix sleep apnea. It can be as easy as changing the way you sleep or losing weight. Depending on the cause of your sleep apnea, a dental or surgical procedure may be helpful. A common treatment is continuous positive airway pressure (CPAP) therapy—essentially a mask worn over the nose and/or mouth while you sleep that helps ensure you keep breathing. Treatment often results in quick improvements in how you feel!

Do you think you have sleep apnea? Visit the Primary Care Clinic at Kahuku Medical Center (KMC) and get some answers. For previous columns and more info on KMC, go to www.kmc-hi.org

North Shore Families Helping Those In Need

Three North Shore Charitable Organizations join together to gather food and funds for Oahu families at risk.

Sunset Beach Christian Church, The Mauloa Foundation and Dream of A Better World Foundation have joined forces to collect food and raise money to help at-risk families in the Oahu area. There is an urgent need for food and hygiene items for the Mauloa food pantry, which serves up to one-third of the North Shore area's homeless and food insecure families.

The Mauloa Foundation, an outreach program created by Chris and Kylie Wall to serve homeless and underprivileged families, is currently experiencing a great need to refill the shelves at its food pantry. The Mauloa Foundation is working with Sunset Beach Christian Church, a North Shore area church that ministers to area families who are at risk. Rounding out the charities involved in restocking the pantry is Dream of a Better World Foundation, a non-profit created by high school students Carly, Jackson and Hannah Button.

Although our islands are a magnet for tourists and visitors year round, the underlying issues of hunger and poverty are increasing rather than decreasing. A recent report from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development estimates that there are nearly 8,000 homeless people in Hawaii. In addition, there are tens of thousands of people living in poverty, with many of them dependent upon non-perishable food and hygiene items they receive from area food pantries.

"There are many great causes to get behind here in the islands, homelessness and food insecurity are close to our hearts because they are close to our homes. Our neighbors in some cases don't know where their next meal is coming from and that deserves our attention." —Chris Wall.

Dream of a Better World Foundation has been heavily involved in raising funds and collecting food donations for charities around the world, as well as those more close to home, such as the food pantry. "We used social media and reached out to families and organizations across Hawaii and the mainland to drum up support for this cause. It was great to see just how many people wanted to get involved!" —Hannah Button.

The church has requested that people interested in donating non-perishable items to the food pantry contact the church office at (808) 638-0019 to find out which non-perishable food items are needed the most at this time. In addition, donations of hygiene items and first aid supplies are accepted at the North Shore Church office, located at 59-578 Kamehameha Hwy Haleiwa, HI 96712.

Hokule'a visited Waimea Bay on its arrival to the North Shore and her crew (including several North Shore residents) was welcomed on shore in a special ceremony at Waimea on Thursday, September 21.

The Wanana Paoa crew lowered the mast and paddled up Anahulu Stream in order to visit a lo'i stewarded by the Fitzsimmons 'ohana. Many residents, North Shore businesses, and non-profit organizations volunteered their time to host Hokule'a and to help highlight the various ways the North Shore is participating in the effort to Malama Honua.

Wanana Paoa, Haleiwa's own double-hulled sailing canoe, escorted Hokule'a as she prepared to enter Waimea Bay. Wanana Paoa and her crew brought Hokule'a crew members ashore for a special greeting and ceremony coordinated by Waimea Valley. More information about Wanana Paoa is available at the Wanana Paoa Facebook Page.

Hibiscus Hybridization in Hawaii

By: Duke Morgan. Horticulturist, Waimea Valley, O'ahu

Hawaiian hibiscus have always been a true spectacle, from stark whites, to intense reds, and on to brilliant yellows and oranges. Long adored for their beautiful blossoms, it's no wonder the hibiscus was adopted as our state flower. Of the eleven species (and many subspecies) of native Hawaiian hibiscus, seven were used extensively and were critical in creating hibiscus hybrids around the globe. The incredible Hibiscus plant doesn't stop there. Like no other hibiscus, five of Hawaii's native white hibiscus (H. arnottianus, H. waimeae) are fragrant!

From the beginning of time insects, animals, and humans have been "selecting" organisms to better suit their needs. Most of the time we are after a bigger seed, a fluffier animal, or a better adapted plant to a certain climactic niche. For Hawaii's hibiscus it is a similarly written story.

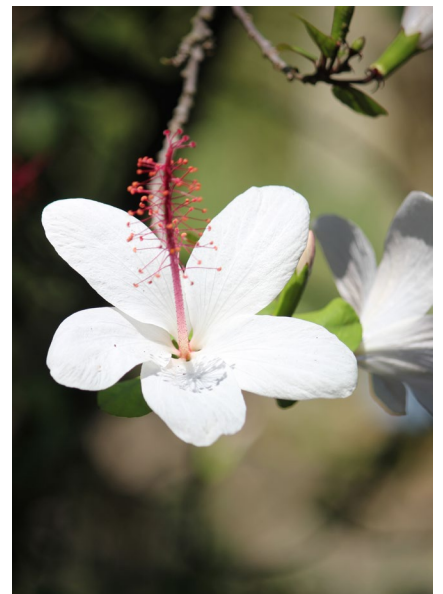

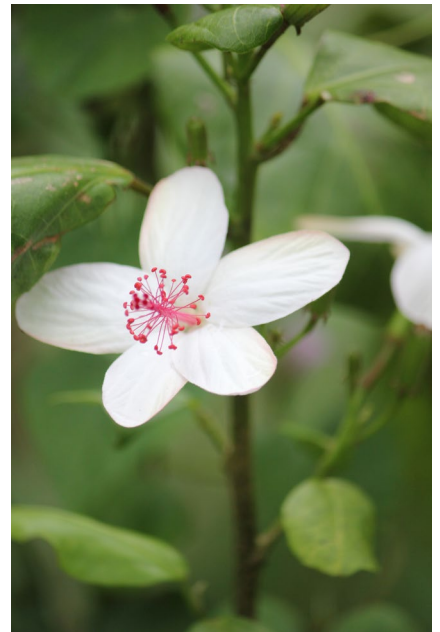

The modern hybrid hibiscus is the result of native Hawaiian hibiscus parentage, as well as other peculiar Hibiscus species from places like the Mascarene Islands, Mauritius, Madagascar, Fiji and China. Before the turn of the century hibiscus hybrid work was a fairly unknown phenomenon. Archibald Cleghorn, father of Princess Ka'iulani, was the first to hybridize hibiscus in Hawai'i in the 1870's. One of the first documented Hawaiian hibiscus hybrids was made in 1902 by W.M. Giffard, and after the first successful hybrids were created, excitement and interest quickly grew and gained popularity among skilled Hawaiian horticulturists and backyard gardeners alike.

The first scientific literature on the subject of hibiscus hybridization (Bulletin 29: "Ornamental Hibiscus in Hawaii", Hawaii Agricultural Extension Station, Wilcox, Holt) was published in 1913. The Bulletin outlines the "A-Z" of hibiscus hybridization, culture, and the first 1000 or so (500 of which were hybridized by a young Hawaiian horticulturist, Holt) successful hybrids and their parentage. In its time it was a masterpiece and a wealth of knowledge, and today it is proof that Hawaii played an integral role in Hibiscus hybridization around the world.

Alongside historical and modern hybrids, "heirloom" or true species Hibiscus can still be found in cultivation today in botanical gardens and institutions around the world as well as many Hawai'i yards. One of the gardens telling this truly magnificent story is the North Shore's own Waimea Valley, where you can take a walk back in time and see the evolution of these gems in front of your eyes.

From nearly every hedge across the state to award-winning hybrids with the International Hibiscus Society, to our own state flower, the Hibiscus is an everyday part of life. A huge amount of gratitude goes out to those who've paved the way in plant collection and horticulture and to those who still preserve what would potentially be gone forever.

North Shore Surfing Wireless Betty Depolito - banzaibetty.com

BRIGHT HAWAIIAN MOONA

Local surfer Moona Whyte is now three time Kite Surfing World Champion. This years title was won in Mauritius in solid surf. The famous wave "One Eye," in the South of Mauritius, delivered perfect conditions for a thrilling conclusion of this year's GKA Kite Surf World Tour. About 71 kite surfers from all over the world were able to present their whole repertoire in front of breath-taking scenery. "I am so stoked to bring another world title back home to Hawaii! It was difficult competing on my backhand in Mauritius but luckily I had some good days to train in some lefts on the South Shore before the trip. Special thanks to my parents, my friends, Jeff Jones, Cabrinha, and my boyfriend Keahi who also won the men's division," said the champ after the event. The Cabrinha team rider studied at the University of Hawaii, Manoa and Mid-Pacific Institute and is an artist and graphic designer with her own company. Her website is <http://www.shallowreefstudio.com>. Congrats Champ!

TESTING A WHOLE NEW SURF SPORT

The WSL Surf League held a test surf event at Kelly Slater's Surf Ranch in Lemoore, California to evaluate the new surf contest experience as it relates to performance, competitive format, spectator interaction and the experience itself. A lot of people think it will take the soul out of surfing but imagine a sort of controlled stadium like atmosphere that can actually make a profit on it's own, just like a football venue. It is a difficult and expensive process in Hawaii to have an event as the set up has to be built and taken down every event. Then talk about the ability to replicate the waves and a good wave at that. The wave is bigger than it looks in video! It was groundbreaking and Hawaii's Carissa Moore won the contest with Gabriel Medina taking out the mens side. The competitors surfed 4 waves, two rights and two lefts, highest from each direction scored their total. Also on site was 11X WSL Champion Kelly Slater as well as seven founding members of the sport of surfing, Peter Townend, Shaun Tomson, Wayne Bartholomew, Mark Richards, Ian Cairns, Randy Rarick and Fred Hem-mings. The video is online at WSL.com. Pretty insane really! Kelly's brilliance in getting a better wave to ride is sure to change the way we think about surfing in a pool! Congrats to all!

Men's Final Results:

- 1 - Gabriel Medina (BRA)
- 2 - Filipe Toledo (BRA)
- 3 - Adrian Buchan (AUS)
- 4 - Kanoa Igarashi (USA)

Women's Final Results:

- 2 - Stephanie Gilmore (AUS)

JOHN JOHN COULD WIN THE WORLD TITLE

John John Florence is in second place after the WSL Trestles event, right behind Jordy Smith from South Africa. With three more events remaining the battle will probably once again be decided at the Billabong Pipe Masters. The tour heads to France, Portugal then Hawaii. We are wishing our extraordinary surfer the best of luck! Hawaii's Keanu Asing will be the defending champ at the Quiksilver Pro France and John John won in Portugal, can he repeat? Let's hope he takes back the yellow jersey in France!
