NORTH SHORE NEWS March 19, 2014 VOLUME 31, NUMBER 6

On Saturday, March 8, 2014, City Council Chair Ernie Martin and Councilmember Carol Fukunaga held a dedication of a Memorial for Bill and Peggy Paty. On August 17, 2011 the City Council passed a resolution to rename a portion of Kaiaka Beach Park in honor of Bill and Peggy Paty as a well deserved recognition of their perseverance and their vision to save the area as a public treasure. Pictured above are Bill Paty with the beautiful wood craving by local artist Jay Marr. The Bill and Peggy Paty Kaiaka Beach Park is more than a tribute to the Patys; it is also a sincere "Mahalo" from the entire North Shore community. Photo by Laura Figueira.

Memorial service at Ali'i Beach Park on March 23, 2014 at 2pm. Friends & family invited from 1pm onwards. Please bring food & drinks; music will be provided. At 4pm a procession of boats will travel to 'Pat's Place' off the Waialua Coast where her ashes will be given to the sea. If you have a boat or water vehicle you are most welcome to join us.

Nothing is more beautiful than a mother, no matter what commitments capture the energy and attention of most, a true mother has one commitment above all others, to love and protect her children. When a mother expands that love to virtually all she comes into contact with, you have a mom like mine. All who really knew Pat will affirm this, she truly cared for them, she listened to them, she allowed them to make mistakes, including betrayal, and like a mother with a misbehaving child (I should know), she would always be willing to forgive such transgresses and simply love them again. The truth is my mom was a mom to a lot of people, and I see those who received her motherly love like brothers and sisters.

Most will remember my mom dutifully on watch in her dive shop Deep Ecology, but Deep Ecology was much more than a business for her. My mom literally lived and died for Deep Ecology, her spirit, her legacy, is connected to it forever and it is my intention to preserve that legacy to the best of my ability. So in this time of mourning... and celebration, we ask that all who were touched by Pat to pay their respects by maintaining her loving spirit and thus preserving her legacy in the most meaningful way possible.

My mothers last great gift to me was to come to my home in London for one month just 12 days before she passed on. In that time she met her youngest grandchild for the first time. She bonded with both of my son's and saw cherished family in England and Ireland as well as spending quality time with her loving 25-year partner Bill. It is clear to me now that she knew her time was short and knowing this, she made sure to share once more her love with those who loved her most. Everyone who saw her upon her return said she was never happier, "on cloud nine." And that is my mom for you, as loving in life as she undoubtedly is from the after-life.

Your loving son, Ken Nichols O'Keefe

Putting our Families First

It is no surprise that a majority of our residents believe that the city's homeless problem has gotten out of hand. Most feel the homeless problem affects their quality of life by crowding our beaches, parks, and sidewalks. To make matters even worse, there is mounting evidence that the problem discourages visitors from returning to Hawaii.

The latest 2013 Statewide Homeless Point-in-Time Count reports there are over 4,500 homeless individuals in Honolulu, about one-third on the streets and the rest in shelters. More than half of these individuals were counted as a family with one adult and at least one child under the age of 18. The University of Hawaii's Center on the Family reported that, of the clients tracked in homeless service programs, over 3,000 clients were under the age of 18 and over 1,700 were under the age of five. These statistics are surprising because most of the homeless visible on the streets are chronically homeless adults suffering from mental illness, substance abuse, or both. Hidden is the fact that nearly a quarter of our homeless population are children.

In 2012, the State implemented the Housing First Initiative, a program which has been implemented in cities across the nation. This program takes chronically homeless adults off the streets and places them in housing without any preconditions. They are provided a full range of support services until they are able to move into permanent housing. Meanwhile, unemployed poor and low-income families continue to struggle with much less assistance or no help at all.

I believe that Honolulu would be better served by putting "Families First" and devoting more of our resources toward stable housing for the large number of homeless children and youth. We need to reassess our housing strategy and shift our policies to first helping our needy families and the working poor. Yes, we must still commit to providing a decent level of services to the chronically homeless, but we must face the reality that many of them will never become self sufficient.

In his FY 15 budget, the Mayor has proposed to spend millions of dollars on Housing First, hoping to clear our streets, parks and other public places of the telltale tents and shopping carts. He contends that Housing First will be able to offer assistance to families as well. Prior to 2010, federal support for "chronically homeless" was limited to unaccompanied individuals. To meet the definition of "chronically homeless" today, a family has to have an adult member with a disabling condition and has been continuously homeless for one year or more, or has had at least four episodes of homelessness in the past three years. While this is a step in the right direction, it still diverts critical housing assistance away from the population where a helping hand can result in a productive and lasting change for the better.

It is time to shift our priorities and first provide housing for the most vulnerable of our society, the working poor. With decent housing, their children may have the means to escape the cycle of poverty. Affordable housing for low income families is the most significant assistance government can provide, both short and long term. I am certain of this as I grew up in public housing and it made a tremendous difference in my life. I would like the city to put the bulk of our housing assistance where it can do the most good for the most people. Putting families first can save the lives of children now in temporary shelters or on the street and give them a reason to hope for better days ahead.

An Opportunity to Save Conservation Land and Improve our Schools

There are many issues that divide our community but also many that can bring us together. The current negotiations between the State and Turtle Bay offer an opportunity for our rural community to receive the necessary financial resources to improve infrastructure, especially in our schools, by using a source of income that already exists in our community. Moreover, in doing so, we can preserve more than 600 acres of undeveloped land around Turtle Bay Resort for generations to come.

At the heart of the negotiations is the State's approval of two new hotels at Turtle Bay Resort, which the State estimates will generate approximately $8 million to $12 million annually. While the new hotels remain unpopular with some in the community, they give the State a fiscally responsible opportunity to pay for the purchase of conservation lands around Turtle Bay by providing a way to pay back the general obligation bond the State will need to purchase the conservation lands.

We have an opportunity to maximize community benefit from the resources within that community and also offer a fiscally responsible and self-sustaining source of funding to improve infrastructure, especially in our schools. Estimated annual revenue of $8 million to $12 million could yield a bond of up to $150 million. The Governor is requesting $40 million to conserve acreage around Turtle Bay, meaning we could take up to an additional $110 million for the educational and infrastructure needs of our community, particularly the Waialua and Kahuku School Complexes.

I introduced House Resolution 43 (HR43) and House Concurrent Resolution (HCR62) asking the Governor to issue a larger general obligation bond and use the extra money for infrastructure improvements in our community, particularly in the Waialua and Kahuku School Complexes. I have begun discussions with the Governor's office, the Department of Education, the State House Finance committee chair and the State Senate Ways and Means committee chair, Senator Clayton Hee's office, the North Shore and Ko'olauloa Neighborhood Boards, as well as the various community associations and school principals. I welcome your feedback and hope you'll consider supporting this concept, which can be a solution that allows us to be fiscally responsible, preserve open space, and fund much needed school infrastructure. Please contact our office at 808-586-6380 or at repfale@capitol. hawaii.gov. Mahalo!

Aloha Neighbors and Friends!

We are approaching the midway point of the 2014 Legislative Session! The Legislature just finished the First Crossover, where bills originally introduced in the House moved to the Senate, and the Senate Bills entered the House. You can find these bills and keep track of the ones that interest you by visiting the Hawaii Legislative website at Capitol. Hawaii.gov. As the Legislature heads into the second portion of the Session after First Crossover, please continue to stay connected and informed about current measures migrating through the process.

While there has been much activity at the Capitol this Session, it has also been a busy time in the community, full of exciting events that I am privileged to be a part of! I've had the opportunity to interact with keiki through visiting elementary schools in my district, and recently my most rewarding experience was the Dr. Seuss Read Across America program. Witnessing the delight and excitement in the faces of the keiki made my visits very worthwhile and inspiring. A bill to note is HB 1596, which is an educational measure that would establish a statewide literacy program.

Working with high school students, our next generation of leaders, is always exciting for me, and seeing our dedicated high school students excel reinforces my optimism for Hawaii's future. I recently participated as a judge in the Central School District level of National History Day and the Hawaii Future Farmers of America competitions, both of which gave me insight into how academically promising this generation of students really is. One of the House Bills which I strongly support is HB 2008, HD 1, which will continue the financial appropriation for FFA programs in our public high schools.

Participating as a panelist at the Central School District Secondary Student Conference revealed the depth of interest and determination of our students to become informed and involved in their local government. The Secondary Student Conference enables students in grades 7-12 to identify, discuss, and arrive at recommended solutions to major youth problems. The emphasis is on school problems that require the attention and joint action by students, the Board of Education, the Department of Education, and the Legislature. Another bill to note is HB 1797, which would provide Hawaii's public high school seniors with information on voter registration and voting. My sincere and heartfelt congratulations to all who participated in the competitions, and my genuine appreciation to those many people who mentored, coached, and supported our students! I am always elated to see young people involved in activities. While I strive at the Capitol to pass legislation that benefits my community, being a part of events like these provides me with opportunities to interact with and better understand the people of my district and my state.

My office is in frequent contact with the Department of Education project management team responsible for the Waialua Elementary School Library. Work is progressing according to schedule for the much anticipated occupancy and opening of the facility this Spring. I will continue to monitor progress on this project until Waialua Elementary School's young scholars are able to enter and use their new library.

Staying connected with our community is of the utmost importance to me and I invite you to my Community Meeting. The Waialua Area Community Meeting will be held the evening of Monday, March 31, 2014 at the Waialua Elementary School Cafeteria. Please save the date to join me, and watch your mail for my reminder postcard with all the details!

It is my honor and privilege to serve you, and the entire State of Hawaii, as a State Representative. Please feel free to contact me at (808) 586-9490 or at RepMatsumoto@Capitol.Hawaii.gov. Also, please take time to visit me at RepMatsumoto.com to sign-up for updates on issues you care about. Mahalo!

North Shore Community Conversations

Senator Clayton Hee (District 23-Kaneohe to Kunia) is pleased to announce the second "North Shore Community Conversations" meeting on Saturday March 22, 2014, 12:00 p.m. - 2:00 p.m., at the Sunset Beach Recreation Center, 59-540 Kamehameha Hwy., concerning North Shore beach management planning and Laniakea/Chun's Highway realignment efforts. The community is invited to participate in a discussion and planning workshop with Senator Hee, experts from the University of Hawaii Sea Grant Program, and fellow community members. Light lunch will be provided. The event is co-sponsored by the Sunset Beach Community Association and UH Sea Grant. ## Wyland Foundation and Monk Seal Foundation hosting art contest

All Students Grade K-12 are Eligible to Create Hawaiian Monk Seal Artwork March 24- April 11, 2014–The Wyland Foundation is teaming up with the Monk Seal Foundation to host the first 'Conservation through Art' contest. The theme is the critically endangered Hawaiian monk seal, Hawaii's state mammal. The contest will be offered to all students in public and private schools in grades K-12 and will start on March 24th. This is an exciting opportunity for children to display both their artistic talent and ocean awareness to one of the world's leading environmental artists, Wyland.

Students will create 'The Hawaiian Monk Seal, a living treasure' through paint, drawing, collage or sculpture. Art mediums can include: chalk, charcoal, clay, crayon, marker, paint, pen, pencil or watercolor. The students will register and submit their original artwork online at www. monksealfoundation.org/artcontest. One winner from each grade will be selected by a panel of artistic judges including Wyland himself! An overall 'best of show' winner will also be selected for a total of 14 winners. Winners will be announced in late May and each will receive prizes and awards.

The goal of the contest is to engage and inspire students to learn more about the Hawaiian monk seal and its unique role in Hawaii's ecosystem. Endemic only to Hawaii, they have existed in the archipelago for 13 million years but their population is at a critical low 1,100 seals. The seals face diverse threats, such as entanglement in marine debris, human disturbance, food limitation, shark predation, infectious diseases and habitat loss. This is a pivotal time to save the monk seals from extinction, as their population is still at a recoverable size. The Wyland Foundation and the Monk Seal Foundation both believe that there's no greater place to start conservation efforts than with public awareness and education. This seal species is a 'living treasure' and its fate hinges on support from the local community and future generations.

About the Monk Seal Foundation

The Monk Seal Foundation is a Hawaii-based nonprofit organization dedicated to the preservation of the critically endangered Hawaiian Monk Seal. The Foundation collaborates with local communities, volunteers, government agencies, non-profits, and other stakeholders to protect the seals, as well as engage in important public outreach and education initiatives.

About Wyland Foundation

The Wyland Foundation, a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization, is dedicated to promoting, protecting, and preserving the world's ocean, waterways, and marine life. Founded in 1993 by renowned environmental artist and conservationist Wyland, the foundation encourages environmental awareness through education programs, public arts projects, and community events. #### Hibiscus Kokiohe

Conservation projects are happening throughout Waimea Valley and can be both rewarding and challenging. One of our conservation targets is the rare Nioi, Eugenia koolauensis, an endangered species in our neighborhood which is threatened by a new alien invader, an airborne fungus called 'ohia rust. If you've gone hiking recently and can no longer find tasty rose apple fruits, this is why. This non-native tree was wiped out by the new rust. Someday soon we hope to grow healthy specimens of the Nioi with other natives in our recently-built 15 acre pig-fenced exclosure in upper Waimea Valley.

Another restoration project in the Valley addresses the often-flooded estuary, and acres of our native sedge, Ehu'awa, which is being planted for erosion control. These are "macro" conservation efforts to improve the natural ecology of our ahupua'a. The plants we use to restore our native forest are seedlings from existing aged trees and plantings from tough indigenous natives, which serve to stabilize soils and also to provide "nurse plants" or over story for rarer plants in need of protection.

Restoration is being attempted throughout the state. Many who are involved in restoration efforts find it difficult to reintroduce natives to areas which have had their soil structure changed by decades of weeds, especially nitrogen fixing legumes such as koa haole. There's much to learn about the symbiosis between roots and their associated native fungi which may be gone in many areas. Its trial and error for some species we are trying to reintroduce and we hope others will learn from our mistakes and successes.

We grow many rare native plants in the gardens of the lower Valley, especially members of the hibiscus family for which our relatively dry climate is ideal. Every Hawaiian variety and subspecies of hibiscus is in our collections, as is every native genus in the family. Waimea's loulu collection is one of the best in the state. Our unusually large exotic plant inventory is what draws many plant lovers to Waimea Valley. One reason our inventory is so valuable and varied is that in the two and a half decades in which we were privately owned, when plants could easily pass international borders, our mission was to create an ark for the world's endangered species, of course rejecting any with potential weediness.

Former Director Keith Woolliams brought high standards of record keeping for which Waimea Valley is well known. Our international reputation encouraged field botanists to send us plants in need of protection from all over the world. Conservation and science come hand in hand. Planting things properly takes one set of skills, but the essence of a good botanical garden is providing accurate names for them and thorough records of where they came from. We have very well-labeled plants and when the names change, as they frequently do, we can engrave new labels on the spot to keep up with changing taxonomy.

By David Orr, Botanical Collection Specialist

Our native red Hibiscus kokio has one endangered subspecies only on Kaua'i, but the wild plants that can still be found statewide are considered a "species of concern". In 2004 we were excited to find a sprawling plant off of Drum Road, because at that time only two wild populations were known on O'ahu – behind the Dillingham airstrip and in Palolo Valley. Since then we've received two more purported wild plants from other places on O'ahu. How do we know that they are true H. kokio's and not hybrids?

Experts compare them with known plants in a herbarium, a collection of dried plants usually glued to acid-free paper. We have a small herbarium in our library, and over the years have given material to the giant one at the Bishop Museum. There are now over 21 accessions of H. kokio growing in Waimea Valley, 13 of these wild-collected from four islands. Each of these, including the cultivated blood lines, are unique forms of this beautiful species, and they should be "vouchered' for posterity and research. Volunteers are working on making herbarium sheets (called vouchers) of dried, pressed flowers, leaves and seed pods for every accession of this species at Waimea. Here's a great way for people (who'd rather not deal with bugs and mud) to help document Waimea's collections for the future – and you get work in air conditioned comfort.

Kahuku teacher chosen to represent Hawaii, awarded by National History Day organization

Kahuku Elementary Teacher Dorian Langi was that will help them contribute to society," Langi selected as a Behring Teacher Ambassador and regional winner by National History Day, an education organization and academic program focused on historical research for fourth- to 12th-graders. Only 36 U.S. educators were chosen.

Langi, who has spent her 25-year career at Kahuku Elementary, was named Feb. 28 for showing outstanding creativity, commitment and inspiration in developing students' interest in history, and for demonstrating excellence in the classroom. The veteran educator uses the yearlong History Day curriculum to achieve all the Common Core Standards for language arts.

As a regional winner, Langi will receive $1,000 for her upcoming service as a History Day ambassador in Hawaii and will travel to Colorado in August. There she'll undergo training to equip her in her duties, which include mentoring Hawaii teachers in the History Day curriculum and finding ways to improve the program.

"I use History Day to make it exciting for the students to meet the benchmarks for language arts," Langi said. The full-time teacher has 40 students. "The History Day program has been a key component . . . by helping our students become responsible, independent learners empowered with the skills stated. "I have seen many lives, including my own, blessed by participating in History Day."

The mother of seven children engages her pupils in the discovery of the historical, cultural and social experiences of the past through hands-on experiences and presentations, and project-based curriculum and instruction.

"Dorian has worked with students on History Day projects for 11 years," said Kahuku High and Intermediate Principal Pauline Masaniai. "Dorian's ability to get students to dive into primary sources and understand informational texts is amazing. She's dedicated hundreds of late nights, weekends and holidays to support her students and she's very deserving of this award."

Langi earned her degree in elementary education from Brigham Young University and completed her special education training and certification through the Hawaii Department of Education. Six of her children attended Laie Elementary, her daughter attended Hauula Elementary and all of them graduated from Kahuku High School.

In 2010, Langi was a finalist for the national Patricia Behring Teacher of the Year Award. NHD cosponsors include the History Channel and National Endowment for the Humanities.

With them on tour was "CB", Cara-Beth Burnside who is a pioneer of women's professional skateboarding and snowboarding. She was on the first Olympic snowboarding team in Japan and has won more than 18 titles in skate competitions such as X Games and the The All Girl Skate Jam. "I worked with the Poseiden Foundation a couple years ago and I liked it", CB explained. " I like being with the kids and stoking them out. It is cool to inspire each other. Nice to meet up with some of the girls that skate in Hawaii also." CB says skating is growing especially because all the skate parks are coming up and hopes to come back for a competition here. "It is a beautiful place and it is even better to come over with a purpose, to reach out to the community, it is all about positive energy." Check her out and the women skaters at www.http://hooplaskateboards. com/ and congrats to the Poseiden Foundation for stoking out the kids!

The Pipe Projuniors completed their first day of competition in 4-7 foot pipeline surf. It was not perfect with north and west direction waves hitting the reef and heavy trades running. Stand outs included North Shore surfer Makai McNamara who scored big on a left tube ride and a right cover-up attached to a big off the lip slam at back door. Barron Mamiya was at home in the break and pulled off some great air maneuvers wowing the crowd and scoring enough to win his heat. The event ended the day early because of the windy bumpy surf. We will have a full report when it is completed.

Alex Gray from California won the Nelscott Reef Big Wave event now called the Oregon Dive n Surf Pro. The surf spot officially named Tacklebuster Reef is in Lincoln City. It was a bumpy 10-15 feet or so and proved to be a challenging day of thick wetsuits and cold water charging. The average water temperature there is 47-53 F and air temps range from 55-61. This is a whole different mentality of surfing! The North Shore's own Kohl Christenson took a fourth place finish in the event. The Big Wave World Tour is now part of the ASP and is gaining some momentum after a deal cut with NBC to air the events live on-line. There was also a Women's "Super Heat" of invitees. It was Pipeline Champion and San Fran local Bianca Vallenti that took the prize. Maui's Andrea Moller ended up in 2nd with Kauai's Kealla Kennelly in 3rd. Congratulations to all, results follow!

1st place: Alex Gray 2nd place: Shawn Dollar 3rd place: Twiggy Baker 4th place: Kohl Christensen 5th place: Will Skudin 6th place: Anthony Tashnick

Pupukea Shell Service Station

"I think of the old Pupukea Shell Service Station on Kamehameha Hwy - two pumps, 60's glass and concrete architecture and a roll up two car garage front; mortise and tenon awning."—Garrett Hongo "Pupukea Shell"

Located in the center of Shark's Cove is one of the oldest businesses' with one of the best views, Pupukea "Shell" Service Station owned and operated by brothers Mike and Ron Yoshikawa since their father's death in 1968. Some people like to say "Service is Our Business" is the name of the service station because thats the only sign out front.

The Yoshikawas have been living in Hawaii since the 1890's. They purchased the service station land in the early 1900's, bringing the Pupukea Shell Service Station to life in 1968. Mike and Ron have dedicated 46 years of service to our North Shore community and say they have about 5 more years before they retire.

Business at the service station is always steady, the one service the service station does not offer is getting your tires rotated and gas!

Mahalo Mike and Ron!

Reward

$500 reward for the return of my stolen rings or for information that results in the return of my rings and a Hawaiian bracelet. Ring # 1, my engagement ring is a size 9 and it is a Hawaiian Heirloom jewelry. It has a black lacquer leaf design around the ring. It is about 1/8 inch thick. The diamond is a 1/2 carat. The distinguishing thing about this ring is that because it was resized there is a part on the bottom that is just plain gold with no engraving. Ring # 2, my sister ring, my sister and I have matching rings made from our mothers diamonds. It is again a size 9, silver with 5 inlaid diamonds, about 1/4 of an inch wide. These are two very sentimental rings. Please, I need them back. They were stolen out of my Sunset Beach home sometime in November on Wehiwa Pl. They may have been used to trade for drugs or whatever. You may not even know that they are stolen. I have pictures of them so please call me, Carma, at 927-1522 or email me at carma@ hawaii.rr.com so i can send you a picture. The Hawaiian bracelet has the name "Ioke" written on it. It belonged to my mother and I received it when she passed away. If you want to remain anonymous, I work as a carrier at the Waialua Post Office. You can take them there and tell them to give them to me. I will still pay you if you give information on where to send the money. PLEASE, PLEASE!!!!
