An Interview with Gil Riviere, Senate District 23

Candidate

By Tom Jacobs

The North Shore News (NSN) recently caught up with Gil Riviere, long-time Waialua resident and current candidate for North Shore and Windward Senatorial District 23. He agreed to an interview, below:

NSN: What's your background, Gil? Riviere: I grew up in Orange County in Southern California, and graduated from Cal State Fullerton. Then I travelled the world on an extended "surfing safari" for four years. In 1987 I moved to Hawaii, and have lived on the North Shore for the past 23 years. In 1991 I became a mortgage loan officer, now with Mann Mortgage.

NSN: Everyone on the North Shore, it seems, is a surfer.

Riviere: (Laughs). Guess so. It's Gil and certainly true in my case. I still paddle out whenever I can find the time.

NSN: Your name keeps popping up in connection with some of the hot-button issues out here like the Laniakea traffic problem, Turtle Bay expansion, and the Laie residential expansion.

Riviere: I'm an unrepentant social activist. As president of "Keep the North Shore Country," we, with the Sierra Club, won the state Supreme Court ruling that forced Turtle Bay Resort to issue a supplemental Environmental Impact Statement to reflect the current situation and issues surrounding Turtle Bay's planned hotel and residential expansion. Now, we're suing them to correct the Supplemental EIS they submitted. I headed the North Shore Neighborhood Board traffic committee to try to move planning forward to correct the Laniakea, "Turtle Beach," traffic jam since 2005. That job is proving much more difficult, with no state budget for planning to resolve the problem. We'll keep pushing. And, somewhat out of the headlines, I became president of the Waialua Little League in 2008, at a time when the league was bankrupt and in danger of collapse. I'm proud to say that the league is now solvent and healthy, with league teams for all ages four to fourteen, soon expanding to sixteen years. The ball field, which was in disrepair, is now ready for a ball game. Heck, I still pull weeds and mow the lawn two to six hours a week out there. (Laughs) Some folks think that I'm the paid groundskeeper there.

NSN: You were state representative for the North Shore when you were defeated in the last election. Here you are running for State Senator. What motivates you?

Riviere: (Laughs) I can't help myself. Community involvement is part of my DNA. That's why I've been such an activist for North Shore environmental and community issues. I loved my time as House Representative and can't wait to do more, much more, in the Senate.

NSN: You served in the House as a Republican. Now you're running for the Senate as a Democrat. Why the switch?

Riviere: When I was in the House, everyone at the Capital asked me, "Why are you a Republican when your views are so "Democratic"? I grew up as a Republican, I guess, because my family was Republican. But I've always been a moderate. As a Representative I was able to "reach across the aisle." I've come to realize that at bottom I simply want to represent the voters of my district, which is overwhelmingly Democratic. So running as a Democrat makes sense. Heck, I really want to stand for all my constituents, Democrat or Republican.

NSN: Why run for the Senate?

Riviere: It began with my endorsement as his successor by Senator Clayton Hee, who is giving up his District 23 office to run for Lieutenant Governor. District 23 is the largest district on Oahu. It is very rural, with large tracts of farmland, watershed, coastline. It needs the kind of environmental care and managed development that I care deeply about. I just think I can serve my district and its issues effectively.

NSN: What do you see as those important issues?

Riviere: The large, rural District 23 needs an advocate for proper land use, with managed growth that preserves its rural character and agricultural resources. Its major artery is two-lane Kam Highway, which can easily become overloaded. Everyone in town relishes a "trip to the country." I want to preserve that. "Keep the Country Country." Overlaying that are the state-and island-wide issues like jobs for this generation and its keiki, cost of living, housing prices, homelessness, on and on. It's a big job, a full-time job. I've made it a goal to visit every home, every resident in the district to find out what their concerns are, not just what I think they are. That's taking up all of my afternoons. My wife asks, "When are you gonna do your day job?"

NSN: Do you think you'll win?

Riviere: Man, that's up to the voters. All I can do is do all I can do.

An Update of the Pupukea Road Rockfall Mitigation Project

The initial Pupukea Road Rockfall Mitigation Project was funded to assure that the only access roadway for more than 400 households remained open and safe for the area residents and visitors. Loose and over-hanging boulders posed a potential threat for years and this well-traveled narrow road is lined with evidence of prior rock falls. The work originally started in 2009 when the City set aside funding for the planning and design of the rockfall mitigation project. The City hired archeologists to do active field monitoring as a preliminary precaution. The scope of the project was to remove loose rocks and boulders, install rockfall protection fences and metal drapery to prevent further erosion, improve drainage and provide landscaping. It was also intended to increase the width of the road at certain places and open up the narrower roadway shoulders.

The City's Department of Design and Construction hired the consultant, URS Corp. for $900,000 to plan and design the project. The City then bid out phase I and selected Prometheus Construction Co. for the winning bid of $1,464,000. Phase I started in March of 2011 and construction lasted 5 to 6 months. Although the project demanded the use of the mauka side lane, Pupukea Road remained open in the construction area during working hours with traffic controlled by police officers. Funding for the second phase was included in the FY 2012 CIP budget for $2,431,000 and the same contractor was retained. The project is expected to last for five months, with construction activity from May 1, 2014 until an estimated completion date of September 30, 2014.

In spite of the disruption of local traffic, the project will benefit the area residents by providing more permanent protection from erosion and the hazards of rock falls. During the first phase of the mitigation project, I heard from residents who had become accustomed to occasional debris on the road and who felt the roadway was much safer because of the rockfall project. I also heard from residents who protested the clearing of trees and brush and who felt the cost of the project was excessive. As with all such preventive projects, success is difficult if not impossible to measure. We have no way of knowing what might have happened had the project not been initiated. With evidence that the area was unsafe, there was really no alternative for the City but to take steps to prevent rockfalls with the potential to cause accidents and possible loss of life. In this case, as in most such situations, it is far better to be safe than sorry.

Haleiwa Arts Festival Showcases Talent and Beauty

Celebrating who we are as a community and the beauty of the place we live manifests itself through the artistic expressions of song, instrument, dance, pen and brush of members of a community. The Haleiwa Arts Festival is a gathering and celebration of our special North Shore community and it is a blessing to have so many within our community that can capture the uniqueness of North Shore Oahu in the art that they create. I congratulate all of you who have made the Haleiwa Arts Festival a welcomed part of summer in Haleiwa for 17 years.

What makes Hawaii the perfect place for celebrations like this is our talent and natural beauty. First, there is so much artistic talent in Haleiwa and across the Hawaii. From dancing to art, cooking to sports, our communities are filled with vibrancy and pure talent. It is so important for us as a community and as elected officials to support opportunities for talent to be fostered and displayed. That is why I am proud that the State Legislature appropriated funds to the Hawaii State Foundation on Culture and Arts, which has used those funds to support events and programs like the Haleiwa Arts Festival.

Of course, Hawaii's natural beauty provides a beautiful inspiration for artists to draw from. It is no wonder that Haleiwa has been the center of this long-time art festival. I hope we can continue to protect what makes the north shore so special, which is both the place itself and the people who reside here that contributed to the unique spirit of North Shore.

There is more we can do to help foster the continued growth of this important part of our community as it adds so much to the quality of life in Hawaii and especially on the North Shore. I look forward to ad-

Smart Choices for a Healthy Summer

School is out and so is the sun! How will you and your family spend this summer? Whether you'll be enjoying a trip off-island or spending time at home with the kids, there are two keys to a great summer—being active and being healthy.

Michael Bennett, defensive lineman for the Seattle Seahawks, recently gave kids an opportunity to be active this summer by holding an OCEAN Health Festival from June 17 to 27 at locations around the island including the North Shore! The objective of this free event was to provide families with insight on how to make better choices that will lead to healthier lifestyles for Hawaii's keiki. This event included a Youth Football Camp featuring NFL athletes Martellus Bennett, Marshawn Lynch, Richard Sherman, Cliff Avril, Red Bryant, Manti Te'o, and Michael Koenen. In addition to building character and sportsmanship through football, the camp provided a positive active experience for the young participants. I was able to partner with the NFL players and teach the kids how to stay active and live healthy. I even got the players to demonstrate for the kids how to jump in to a Double-Dutch rope! The five-day festival also included a healthy cooking demonstration at Waialua Elementary School with Chef Sam Choy, serving to educate families on healthy eating and giving them affordable food alternatives to cook at home!

The OCEAN event promoted the idea that good health comes from a balance of physical and dietary fitness, which is why I want to encourage you to achieve both this summer. It's easier than it seems—here are some tips!

- Start each day off right. Have a hearty and healthy breakfast. Fruit smoothies are a kid-friendly way to get lots of nutrients. Pair this with an egg omelette and you're on your way to a healthy day!
- Keep healthy snacks on hand. One of my favorites for a hot summer day is frozen yogurt popsicles! Granola bars are a great go-to on your way out the door
- Make sure to stay hydrated throughout the day. Homemade lemonade with honey instead of sugar is a refreshing treat, but remember to drink lots of water.
- Create an activities calendar! Include fun family plans like stand-up paddling, biking or planting a garden. On days when you choose to take a break from the sun and stay inside, encourage your kids to do productive things like read or make art to keep their minds active as well!

• Check out locally run website, www.keikination.com to find youth sports, events, and activities around you.

I hope you utilize these tips to have a fun-filled active and healthy summer! As always, if you ever have any questions about anything that happens either in our community or at the Capitol, you can contact me by email at RepMatsumoto@Capitol. Hawaii.gov, by telephone at (808) 586-9490, or by stopping in at the Capitol in Room 303. I always look forward to seeing and hearing from you!

Dear Editor:

Construction has been ongoing on Pupukea Rd. with trucks, tractors, welding machine, etc. to cut trees down, remove the roots, dig out rocks, etc. The construction is done by Prometheus Construction. I have no idea why or what they're trying to accomplish except back-up traffic and irritability of the resident driving out of Pupukea. They're also dumping all the rocks, cement tree stumps, roots over the wall where the hair-pin turn is. Is this supposed to be a dump? If so then all the residents from Pupukea can dump rubbish as well. There should be no exception. They're running a business for profit, take it to the dump site like everyone else. I remember seeing the news that a business dumped rubbish in an area where dumping is not permitted. Although there was no sign, but I don't think you're that unconcerned that you dump anywhere you please. It's making the area of $1,000,000 homes like the City dump.

Cool tips for a hot summer from Hawaiian Electric

According to early weather predictions for El Niño conditions, it may be a long hot summer here in Hawaii and that will likely cause a spike in air conditioning use. To help island residents and businesses manage electricity use while staying cool and comfortable, Hawaiian Electric is offering its free Cool Tips for Home and Work brochure starting in July.

The colorful booklet is available on the company website, hawaiianelectric.com, at its Customer Service Centers at 1001 Bishop Street – Lobby and 820 Ward Avenue, and at all eight City Mill locations across Oahu. To request a copy by mail, please call 543-7511.

"When temperatures soar coupled with humidity, there's a natural tendency to turn on the air conditioning," said Ka iulani de Silva, Hawaiian Electric director of education and consumer affairs. "But doing little things like running ceiling fans or opening windows to let in the trade winds can go a long way to having a cool summer while conserving energy and controlling energy bills," said de Silva.

One company investing in energy efficiency measures is Kahi Mohala, the not-for-profit psychiatric hospital in West Oahu, which received a grant from Hawaiian Electric to help implement its "Cool Down Kahi" Energy Efficiency Project. Temperatures in the facility's patient unit common areas can run in the upper 80s to 90 degrees during the summer and the impact on patients and hospital staff range from reduced energy and more irritability to frequent headaches and fatigue. Because air conditioning would be cost prohibitive, the facility will be replacing existing fans with new multi-blade overhead fans that are more efficient in distributing air flow, thus reducing the temperatures in the facility common areas. In addition, window tinting will help to reduce the sun's rays and incoming heat.

For homeowners and businesses, summer is the time to take advantage of sales at hardware stores and replace cooling systems that are more than 10 years old with an ENERGY STAR® qualified system. The ENERGY STAR label means the equipment has met strict energy efficiency guidelines. If sized and installed correctly, and supported by a properly sealed duct system, ENERGY STAR cooling equipment can save up to 20 percent on annual energy costs and will use 25 to 40 percent less energy than a new conventional system, according to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

"Certainly, if you're going to use an air conditioning, schedule maintenance checks to ensure the system is working safely and efficiently," added de Silva. "Clean or change the filter, too, at least once a month."

For more cool tips and other energy saving ideas, check out http://www.hawaiianelectric.com/heco/Residential/Energy-Savings-Toolkit or http://www.hawaiianelectric.com/heco/Business/Energy-Conservation-Kits.

Who is the fastest swimmer on the North Shore? Jamison Gove took that honor last month at the Cholos Waimea Swim which is part of the Surf n Sea North Shore Swim Series. His time for the 1.2 mile race was 27:56.0. Gove who has been around the North Shore for about 10 years is also quite the overall water athlete who surfs, plays water polo and bodysurfs on occasion. He is a natural who played a bit of high school and college water polo at UC Santa Barbara in California. He now is a Sunset local who works as an Oceanographer for NOAA, The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration doing scientific research on coral reef ecosystems in Hawaii. Gove also is on our Surf Water Polo Team, team Paumalu. The team is in training for the Duke's Oceanfest coming up in August. "Surf water polo is a super fun sport with a pretty cool history," said Gove. "The story goes that a volleyball floated out into the line up one day in Waikiki and Duke Kahanamoku picked it up while he was surfing and tossed it around with his buddies. I've been playing in the Duke Oceanfest for 8 years now, we lost to the L.A. Lifeguards last year so we plan on taking back our bragging rights." Other members of the team include Doug Cole, Todd Sells, Aukai Furgeson and Craig Watson. The Duke's OceanFest starts August 16th-24th in honor of the Duke, his birthday is August 24th. Duke Kahanamoku is considered the best waterman in Hawaii's history! Zippers was world class all week. Waves ranged 3-5 feet and was a dominant right off of a rock outcropping. Temperatures there in summer are tough but Ho handled it well and was victorious. "I really felt comfortable," she said after the win. "The waves was good it allowed us girls to open up and push our surfing...I have never competed in this kind of heat but it was all about keeping hydrated, drinking even when you did not feel thirsty. It was a 6 star but there were some big names in the event so it feels good to win. I am going on break now and on a trip to Indo with by brother for a photo trip then next is the U.S. Open." Good luck to Coco! The U.S. Open of Surfing is July 27-August 3rd.

A North Shore Artist Prepares for the Hale'iwa Arts Festival

By Tom Jacobs

The North Shore News (NSN) caught up with a local artist, Dennis McGeary, a few days ago as he spread out his paints and canvas in preparation for the Hale'iwa Arts Festival, held at Hale'iwa Beach Park on the weekend of July 19 – 20.

NSN: How long have you exhibited at the festival?

McGeary: All seventeen years. I was an original participant who attended many of the organizational meetings. I love the idea of a local gathering of artists and residents. It's a great investment of my time and money, and it's great to greet fellow artists and old customers and meet new people.

NSN: Have you been a North Shore resident forever? McGeary: (Laughs) Well, not forever. I came to the North Shore thirty years ago from the mainland and lived for a long time at the old "Cackle-Fresh" egg farm next to Loko'ea Fish Pond in Hale'iwa. These days I live in Wahiawa, but my art has been on display in Hale'iwa Town all thirty of those years: places like the Ewa Gallery and Beverly Fettig's gallery, now closed, and the Soap Cellar.

NSN: Your web site, art50.com, lists several awards for your paintings. Which ones are you most proud of? McGeary: Highest on my list, I suppose, is the Melusine Award for Painting presented by the Honolulu Academy of the Arts several years ago. In addition to a large cash award the Academy purchased my painting for its collection. Next would be the Jean Charlot award for art excellence, also from the Academy of the Arts. I'm also proud that the Queen Lili'uokalani Trust purchased my painting of Lili'uokalani Church in Hale'iwa for their collection.

NSN: You have several art degrees from college, right? McGeary: Yep. I studied at Olympic College in Washington State, Gloucester College in New Jersey, and I have associates' degrees in Fine Arts and Science from Leeward Community College here on Oahu.

NSN: What is it about the North Shore that has attracted you all these years?

McGeary: In short, the land and the people. The beauty of the ocean, the clear sky, all the vivid greens, the blues, the colors of the flowers and the rainbows ... all of this bounces me out of bed in the morning. I can't wait to start a canvas. And the people have the same beauty. Local, Haole, I don't care, everyone has an open heart and mind.

NSN: You sound like a happy man. McGeary: How can I not be?

The Kauhale Restoration Project at Waimea Valley Needs Your Help

Waimea Valley is deeply rooted in Hawaiian history. Through the centuries, land commonly changed hands with the death of each ruling chief of O'ahu. Waimea did not. Although the faces changed, Waimea Valleys' function remained the same--a sacred valley belonging to the priests.

From the time of Lono-a-wohi, [in about 1080 A.D.] Waimea and Pupukea belonged to the kahuna class. "Waimea was given to the Pa'ao kahuna class in perpetuity and was held by them up to the time of Kamehameha III when titles had to be obtained.

Waimea Valley has been a place of mana and spiritual power to Hawaiians for hundreds of years. Fragments of the legacy of religious power and centuries of Hawaiian civilization still live in Waimea Valley. In the traditional land division that expands from the mountaintop to the sea, the ahupua'a of Waimea encompasses important, culturally significant sites.

One of these sites is an ancient living site that bears silent witness to this powerful cultural heritage--Kauhale Kahiko. A kauhale is a group of hale (structures) with different functions that comprise a Hawaiian home site. Hi`ipaka LLC, Waimea Valley and a number of partners have taken on a major restoration project of this site. The restored Kauhale will feature eight carefully and authentically built hale, surrounded by plants in an open air setting where Hawaiians actually lived.

Partner organizations include the Women's Community Correctional Center (WCCC), clients at Hina Mauka (a non-profit organization that provides substance abuse treatment services) and the Pu`a Foundation (a non-profit organization that was established in 1996 as part of the apology, redress, and reconciliation process between the United Church of Christ (UCC) and the Hawaiian people). These partners utilize the project for dual purposes: to help restore both this important historical site and to restore their clients who are going through a healing process.

The Kauhale restoration project began in December 2013 with much progress to date. A large number of ironwood trees have been harvested and debarked for hale construction. The work crews and staff have also collected tons of rocks for use in the foundations and thousands of loulu palm (Pritchardia) leaves for thatching. Two hale, the Hale Mua (men's eating house) and the Hale Aina (women's eating house) have been completed under the supervision and direction of world renowned master hale builder Francis Sinenci and his alaka'i (apprentices).

There is much work to be completed and community help is being requested to help complete the project. Community groups and individuals can help in the following ways:

- Attend a Kauhale work day to collect or prepare building materials. Work days are currently scheduled for July 11 and 18 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.
- Collect ti leaves from your yard or neighborhood and drop off the bundles to Waimea Valley for use in thatching one of the hale. Each bundle should consist of 16 brown and/or yellow leaves. It is important that each bundle contain 16 leaves. 400,000 ti leaves are needed for thatching one hale.

We are also in need of temporary housing for the master hale builder and his alaka`i. Basic accommodations for 5 to 6 people for up to 10 days at a time is needed.

The Kauhale restoration is a very special project and community members are welcome and encouraged to help. For more information or to sign up for one of the workdays contact Ah Lan Diamond at adiamond@waimeavalley.net or 638-5859: or Athena Sparks at aparks@waimeavalley.net or 638-5855.

North Shore Chamber of Commerce Farm Mapping Project By North Shore Chamber of Commerce's Agriculture Committee

Farmers are always busy on their farms. They know how to get there each day when they go there to work for 8 to 12 hours on their production. However, during the Ag Theft meetings held at Waialua Elementary School, we discovered that most of the farms had NO ADDRESSES. Thus, in case of fires, need for an ambulance, or the need for police help, there was no way that Emergency Responders could find their farms.

With the financial and in-kind help of Dole Foods, Pioneer Hybrid, Kamehameha Schools, and the Honolulu Police Department District 2 working with the North Shore Chamber of Commerce, the farm mapping project is completed. This information is only available to Emergency Responders and includes: name of farmer call phone numbers and marked addresses for farmer, cell phone numbers, and marked addresses for the farms.

This was a difficult project to complete, but with the perseverance and hard work, especially of Alika Napier, the project was completed. All of the streets are named, a map is available, and the cell phone numbers of the farmers are in one file. This information will assist Emergency Responders when a farmer is experiencing an emergency and get them the help that they need.

Thank you to all that made the Farm Mapping Project a success so that farmers can work diligently on their farms, knowing that IF HELP IS NEEDED, the police, fire department, or ambulance will be there in good time to service their needs.
