Laura honored as Grand Marshall at the 2015 Hale'iwa Town Christmas Parade

In Memory of Laura Lee Bolles From Laura's friends

Laura Bolles passed away in Waiialua on November 10, 2021 at the age of 75 years old. Born in Sacramento, CA, she moved to Waiialua in 1968 when she was recruited from the mainland due to a teacher shortage. She taught 4th grade at Solomon Elementary on Schofield Barracks and eventually became a Special Ed teacher.

Gordon Kuwada, the principal of Waiialua High School, put her up in the teachers' housing on the high school's campus, even though she wasn't teaching at his school. Each cottage had four bedrooms and a shared bathroom and each teacher paid $60 a month rent and yard maintenance. The group of mainland teachers became lifelong friends and many married "local boys."

Laura became deeply involved in the community. She served on the Waiialua Community Association's Board as a trustee in the late 1970s and early 1980s, serving as President in 1981. She also served on the Neighborhood Board in the 1980s when the Hale'iwa Theater was demolished in 1983. That tragedy galvanized the community to protect the remaining historic buildings in Hale'iwa by establishing the Hale'iwa Special Design District in 1984. Laura said that she and Meryl Andersen were the "mothers of the Hale'iwa Special District" and fought to protect it on several occasions. Laura was also responsible for preserving the historic part of the current Hale'iwa Elementary School, going through the lengthy process of getting it on the State and National Registers of Historic Places in 1980.

Laura's hobbies included being an artist, belly dancing and politics. She was a fierce advocate for what she believed in and made many other contributions to our community. She was the epitome of a great friend and an excellent cook. She is survived by her sister, Barbara, and her many friends who will treasure their memories of her as they attempt to carry on her legacy of community involvement.

PKB "Da Best"

Dear Friends and Family of the North Shore,

It is with a heart full of love, yet also with great sadness that I write my final article for the North Shore News as one of your legislators.

As many of you know, the 2020 census informed the reapportionment process which drastically shifted the 51 district boundaries for all of Hawai'i. These new district lines went into effect with the election results. While I am humbled and fortunate to win my re-election, the district I now represent no longer includes Waialua and Mokuleia.

I grew up here. My family is from here. The North Shore is such a special place for me, and I will make sure it is special for my children as they grow up. For the last ten years, it has been my honor and privilege to serve you in the State House. I will always value the time I have spent with you. From reading in the schools to Town Hall meetings, Trunk R' Treat to the Christmas Parade, I will cherish the memories made with all of you.

I am so proud of the accomplishments we have achieved together during this time. I want to assure you that even though I may no longer Represent you in the State House, I will still write legislation that protects and benefits your communities.

In addition, I'm not letting any of you off the hook when it comes to making your voice heard in the legislature! We still want to hear from you! I want to see you testifying on bills you care about. I want you to continue to advocate for your communities. I want your kids to grow up knowing that they have a voice that can help all of Hawai'i. I am still here and I am still listening!

With all of that being said, I want to say mahalo for working together with me for our community for the past ten years!

Please do not forget that the next legislative session is quickly approaching! Opening Day will be Wednesday, January 18, 2023. If you plan to attend the ceremonies please make sure to stop by my office and say hello! I would love to see you and hear how you are doing! There are a number of new laws that have gone into effect this year and more that will go into effect as of January 1. You can visit my website www.RepMatsumoto.com to see a full list of new laws.

While I may no longer be your State House Representative, please do not hesitate to contact me if you should need anything. If you have any questions or concerns call my office at (808) 586-9490, email me at RepMatsumoto@capitol.hawaii.gov, or visit RepMatsumoto.com.

Dear Doctor, “Do I need the new pneumonia vaccine?”

Earlier this year, the United States Preventative Service Task Force (USPSTF) and Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices (ACIP) updated their recommendations regarding pneumonia vaccines for adults. Previously, the recommendation was for “at risk” adults to receive the pneumonia-13 vaccine (Prevnar13) followed by the pneumonia-23 vaccine (Pneumovax). The new recommendation is for anyone above age 65, or “at risk” and above age 19, to receive the pneumonia-20 vaccine (Prevnar20)!

What qualifies as an at-risk medical condition?

In alphabetical order, the most common risk factors are alcoholism, chronic heart/liver/lung disease, chronic kidney disease, cigarette/vape use, diabetes, and cancer. Other less common “at risk” conditions are spinal fluid leaks, cochlear implants, having no spleen, immunodeficiencies, HIV, sickle cell disease, and solid organ transplant recipients.

You may also have heard about the new pneumonia-15 vaccine (Vaxneuvance). This vaccine can be used similarly to the pneumonia-20 vaccine but requires a follow-up dose of the pneumonia-23 vaccine eight weeks to one year after the initial pneumonia-20 vaccine. The pneumonia-15 vaccine can also be administered eight weeks to one year following an initial dose of the pneumonia-23 vaccine.

Isn't that confusing?!

In summary, if you have not received any pneumonia vaccines before, are above age 65, or are “at risk” and above age 19, then you should receive the pneumonia-20 vaccine. If you have received one of the other pneumonia vaccines already, it is best to ask your provider which pneumonia vaccine you need and when it is due.

Stonefish Grill Announces New Owner, New Menu

North Shore’s Gathering Place Gets a Revamp

Stonefish Grill in Hale’iwa announced a new local ownership and a new menu. Known as “the gathering place”, Stonefish Grill has a new owner that everyone on the North Shore will recognize: Kanani Oury.

With over 20 years of hospitality and restaurant management experience, Kanani Oury has taken ownership of changes and growth at Stonefish. Prior to Stonefish, Kanani worked at Hale’iwa Joe’s for 20 years. She also worked as an office manager for FreeSurf magazine and was the host for Board Stories TV for two years. Born and raised in Hale’iwa on O’ahu’s North Shore, Kanani has a very rooted vision for how she wants customers to feel when they walk through the doors of her restaurant.

“Growing up in this community is really at the heart of the standards I set for our customer service,” Kanani says. “I want everyone who walks in the door to feel like they are a welcome guest in a friend’s home, because that’s what this small community is about. You can feel the love and Aloha here whether you’re at the beach or getting groceries. I want anyone who eats here to feel the same sense of belonging and care through both food and service.”

Stonefish Grill’s new menu is also a love language: Breakfast, Lunch, and Dinner dishes that are a blend of culinary skill, home cooking and a celebration of fresh ingredients that only island life provides. Menu items only found at Stonefish include malasada pancakes, cinnamon roll French toast, prime rib poke, fresh local catches and many more mouthwatering dishes with a unique local twist.

When the pandemic hit, Stonefish was struggling to keep the doors open as an Italian restaurant under its previous ownership. Kanani has renovated the interior, changed the menu, created a never before offered breakfast menu, managed staffing issues, and pivoted under the constantly changing restrictions of 2020 and 2021. Stonefish made its way out of the red under her leadership, and she officially took on ownership this year with partner Gary Jacobus. “I’m excited for the many changes ahead and to watch this place grow,” she says.

NORTH SHORE REAL ESTATE TRENDS

by Richard Sterman (R)
of Sterman Realty

Owners & Property Managers - Know This:

Whether you're an Owner with Rental Units or a Property Manager - you should consider the following:

A. Fire Alarms: Always use the latest Fire Alarm systems that are properly placed in your rentals. *After 30 years of doing rentals and no fires - we just had two kitchen fires within days of each other! Both homes were saved by Fire Alarms! A big mahalo to both individuals that not only put out the fires with garden hoses - but, in the Waiialua three level townhouse fire - rescued and saved the mother and child from a 3rd level window using a ladder! NOTE: Costco now has a sale on Fire Alarms! And - make sure the rental properties are covered for fire, liability and other coverages! Tenants should also get their own "Renter's Policies" which usually costs less than $200/year and cover tenant contents and more!

B. Periodic Checkups: roof, gutters, termites, cesspools, septic tanks, plumbing, garage doors, wooden decks, stairs, solar and hot water heating systems (including changing the rods and cleaning out the sediment inside the tanks every few years).

C. Mold, Mildew and Airborne Contaminants: Any of these can cause illnesses and an owner or property manager can be held liable if found negligent. Some insurance policies exclude coverage for these liabilities but there are a few companies that will add a rider that would have these issues covered.

D. Wastewater: Be sure to have rules on what is not allowed to go down the drains! Garbage disposals are bad but "disposable baby wipes" are the worst! And - if the rental has chronic drain clogs - it could be a clogged cesspool/septic tank or a broken drain line where roots have gotten into the pipes or the line was broken due to the ground shifting (NOTE: There are certified Sewer Scopers that will find these problems and now, even regular plumbers will have their own cameras).

Someday - I'm going to write a book with all my "war stories"! Until then - be sure you follow the above suggestions or hire a professional Property Manager that does this for a living!

Chris Gardner Inducted in the Hawaii Swimming Hall of Fame

North Shore Swim Series founder and former big-wave surfer Christopher Gardner was recently inducted in the Hawai'i Swimming Hall of Fame, Class of 2021, along with other local open water swimming luminaries (Stefan Reinke, Kathy Shipman, Alan Hong, Jim Budde, Sam Aucoin, and Marcelle Arakaki).

After a year delay due to the COVID pandemic, the Hawai'i Swimming Hall of Fame's Class of 2021 was inducted at a dinner ceremony on October 15th at the Japanese Cultural Center of Hawai'i.

The mission of the Hall of Fame is to promote, preserve, and perpetuate Hawaiian aquatic sports for the future by: celebrating the achievements of swimmers, divers, water polo athletes, and by sponsoring aquatic exhibits and performances.

At the Hawai'i Swimming Hall of Fame induction, he was introduced as such, "Christopher Gardner was born in New York, raised in Florida where he learned to swim and surf, then moved to Hawai'i (Leilehua High '75) to pursue big-wave surfing; he toured the world surfing circuit on the Association of Professional Surfers tour in 1977 and 78. Chris was instrumental in making the North Shore Swim Series (NSSS) a major aquatic event in Hawai'i today. It had begun in 1983 as a single swim, and by 2014 it had grown into a five-race series of ocean swims going from Sunset Beach to Hale'iwa. Chris was the event organizer, promoter, and race director of the NSSS from its inception, as well as many other ocean swims, biathlons, and triathlons on O'ahu for over 20 years. He is a member of the Waikiki Swim Club, National Association of Emergency Medical Technicians, Professional Association of Diving Instructors, and is in the Jacksonville Beach Surfing Hall of Fame."

Mahalo to the North Shore Swim Series sponsors:

- Surf N Sea - 20 years • Cholo's - 19 years

VANS PIPE MASTERS

There is a new sheriff in town! It's Vans. Little did everyone know that Vans actually owns the name Pipe Masters. Things are moving forward! Vans are switching gears! Vans is going to ramp things up and change the format for the event. The Vans Pipe Masters is here, December 8-20 is the date and it's fast approaching. It's exciting! There is a new format where Vans is mixing it up with local surfers, world tour pros and random surfers known for surfing Pipe. They will surf three times and add up the scores to advance. The scoring is changing also. No longer are the judges just looking for tube rides but now maneuvers and airs will be awarded. Definitely an upgraded theory of what is great surfing at Pipeline now. The surfers will be 60 men and women hand picked because they represent the best tube riders and aerialists on the planet with the most radical surfing ever. Stay tuned with updated info at vasnspipemasters.com the Pipeline Masters is disrupted forever!

WINTER SKIN CANCER IS WORRISOME FOR HAWAII

Summer may be over but in Hawaii the sun is still very, very strong. We have to be aware of that and stay protected. Apparently we do pretty good. Statistics show we are in the middle of the list for the highest states with skin cancer, probably because we are better at protecting ourselves. The highest state, Utah. About 360 people die from skin cancer yearly. I am being aware because this writer just had four removed and there are more lurking. It's not a fun surgery. The Doctor just basically digs it out, then checks to be sure it's all gone in the layers of skin, then stitches you up! Ouch! So some reminders for ya, wear the right clothing, wear sun proof jerseys in the water and be sure to use a great reef safe sunscreen. Cover your head with sun proof hats and wear sunscreen on your hands also. Beware your eyes can also get sunburned! Don't do what my age group did back in the day, we put oil on our skin and sun worshiped!

WSL SUNSET QUALIFIER AT VALS REEF

The World Surf League provided a great qualifying event for our Hawaii surfers at Sunset Beach. Most everyone was practicing in big waves but the swell just did not come. Vals Reef was the venue for the first few days. It was good Vals though and was very challenging. Timing the shore backwash was key. Later the finals were held on the point and it was Gabriela Bryan and Barron Mamiya taking top honors and some valuable points. Bryan is from Kauai and already made the world tour for the second consecutive year. Mamiya is ranked 16th and this Hawaiian is making a big name for himself! Congrats to everyone. The Sugar Mill Surfboard Shapers

By Noah Grodzin

Set behind giant banyan trees at the Waialua Bandstand Park is the old Waialua Sugar Mill. The mill is a converted Sugar Mill turned business park that hosts a collection of eclectic artists that include a soap maker, wood workers, stone cutters, local coffee, a farmers' market on Saturdays and the Banyans Island food truck which offers two sandwiches named after a couple of local surfboard shapers Eric Arakawa and Jon Pyzel respectively. There are many things happening at the mill, but it's the surfboards shapers, glassers, and fin makers that comprise an impressive collection of craftsmen and bring a special element to the mill.

The waves and ocean are so immensely strong in Hawaii that a surfer must be 100% confident in what is under their feet! There must be no doubt in the surfer's mind that the board will not fail them. The waves of the North Shore of Oahu are considered to be some of the strongest in the world and it is these waves that forge the surfboards made on the Northshore to be perhaps the best made surfboards in the world. These surfboards are made by hand and represent an art form that requires many years to develop. Surfboard makers spend countless hours developing their eye for the curves and rails of the boards, thoughts about how to create paddle power, along with strategies to enhance stability are defined and redefined board after board.

The mill may seem unassuming with its collection of ramshackle structures and potholed streets but upon entering any of the Surfboard Shops you step into a world of high-performance sports equipment, featuring surfboards that have been ridden by legends of the sport including past and current world champions. At various shops you will see boards that have been ridden by such greats as Derek Ho, Andy Irons, Bruce Irons, John John Florence, Bonga Perkins, Garret McNamara, Koa Rothman, and many more.

The Arakawa shop sits at the front of the mill. Eric Arakawa born and raised on Oahu, was the first surfboard shaper to locate at the mill in 1986. As you walk inside Arakawa's shop you enter a show room brilliantly filled with an array of beautifully sleek boards. Eric is a very easy-going person who is happy to speak to you and treats everyone who walks through his door the same whether they are a sponsored pro surfer or just someone who wants to try out the sport for the first time. Eric's son Sean mans the front counter. Sean, a surfer himself beams with pride when talking about his father's career and looks forward to continuing on the family tradition.

At the center of the mill acting as the mill's gathering place is the Waialua Surf Shop, formerly Third Stone, is home to Owl Chapman. Owl is the uncle to Kalani Chapman, a pro surfer now also making his way as a shaper by apprenticing under Owl. It was Owl and Dick Brewer who created the short board revolution. Chapman still shapes boards by hand only; focusing all his energy into every board making them each unique for their intended rider.

Down along the back side of the Mill you will find Carl Schaper's shop. Carl grew up surfing in Virginia Beach in 1970's and immediately took to making his own boards. Surfboards quickly became a lifelong passion that took Carl all over the world, eventually landing in Oahu and making his way to the Sugar Mill in 1988. Carl's approach is that of a precision engineer constantly re-evaluating dimensions with a goal of continuous improvement in every board.

Located towards the back of the mill there is Mike Casey who has been shaping surfboards since 1967. Mike is a true one of a kind who, like Owl, continues to shape boards by hand only; without the use of computers or templates. Mike considers himself to have a "Harvard" education in surfboards as he spent his formative years learning at Channin Diffenderfer surfboards in California. Mike would eventually make his way to Oahu in the late 1970's and has been shaping boards here ever since.

Next to Mike's shop is Jon Pyzel, one of the newer surfboard shapers to locate at the mill but already making an impressive name for himself with current world champion riders.

Amongst the more prominent names there are many other surfboard builders operating at the mill such as Matty Raynor, Matt Yerxa, Daniel Jones, Josh Murray and so many more names every time you talk to someone more names come up.

The mill is also filled with many young people looking to make their own way in the business. Like Zach from Oregon at the counter of the Waialua Surf Shop chasing his dreams or Taylor, a glassing apprentice stoked to be surrounded by the legends of the industry. The Waialua Sugar Mill is beyond a special place for many that work there, pass through, or visit. It's a place where you can learn something every time you visit. A surfboard can be magic and this magic permeates throughout the mill.

Hawaii Nurse Creates Abuse Prevention Teaching for Parents

Child abuse survivor, author, mother, and nurse writes book and creates, SHOUT: a simple safety tool parents can teach children to prevent abuse today!

A new children’s book became available titled, Your Safe Body. Written to teach sexual abuse prevention to children. The author is Katie Hastings, RN-BSN, a Kahuku, Hawaii resident.

Positive Customer Impact

Many parents and children have benefited from the teaching included in the children’s book, Your Safe Body. This book was written by a nurse, and child sexual abuse survivor that saw a major gap in body safety education amongst children. She decided to do something about it, and created the body safety acronym, SHOUT™. SHOUT is taught in the book to help children quickly identify what to do if they ever find themselves in an unsafe situation.

S is for STOP H is for HELP O is for OUT U is for UNSAFE T is for TELL

Product

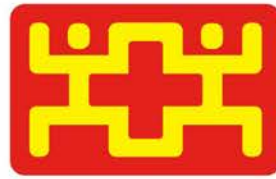

As a child abuse survivor, mother, and nurse, she combined her knowledge and experience together to help empower parent’s confidence in teaching abuse prevention, and children’s ability to self-advocate, recognizing unsafe situations. She speaks at events teaching abuse prevention and shares useful information as free recourse to parents online @katiethemomthenurse. Her book can be purchased online from bookbaby.com or at major retailers like Amazon, Target and Barnes and Noble.

What Parents Are Saying

“Every Parent Needs this Book,” said a mother, Grace. “Such a wonderful book to educate families about body safety. Opens up communication and helps kids learn what to do and say if they ever feel unsafe! Every family should have and read this book to their children.” “So important,” said a father, Benton. Every family should own this book and read and discuss it with their children. The author does a fantastic job of helping to talk about something that can be so difficult, and making it easy. This book will no doubt save many children from becoming victims of abuse.”

The Great Thanksgiving of 1918

By Captain Rick Rogers

Over one hundred years ago, Thanksgiving was a very special holiday. The wires were alive with the news that the Great War in Europe was over. Most of the 10,000 men and women from the Hawaii Territory who served in the Great War had yet to return to the islands. More than 100 would not.

The first of the post-war tourists were arriving via the luxurious steam vessels. The well-heeled travelers might spend a day or two at the Royal Hawaiian or the Moana Hotels in Waikiki, before boarding the Oahu Railroad and Land Company's train for an excursion to the North Shore. The better passenger cars were towards the front of the train. Whistle stops may be made at the Aiea and Ewa Mills, Nanakuli and again at the Waianae Station.

Kaena Point was rounded as the train turned into the wind. Wires had been strung adjacent to the tracks, so if the train was stopped for some unforeseen reason the engineer could toss a phone wire over the land line and communicate with operators around the island. The primary destination for the more affluent passengers was the Haleiwa Hotel, which opened in 1898, just a year before the line was completed all the way to Kahuku Plantation.

Standing in front of the Haleiwa Hotel, visitors were struck by the symmetry of the edifice. Large lawns sloped to the water's very edge. No better view of the splashing surf could be imagined. Inside, one found the finest hardwood floors. Beautiful paintings graced the walls. The service-ware, even the gardeners' tools were the very finest quality to be found west of the Mississippi.

The first floor was devoted to the office, parlor, dining room, and kitchen. The dining room occupied the east end of the building. A broad stairway led to the second floor, which was devoted to the sleeping compartments. The front rooms overlooking the ocean were single, while the end and mauka rooms were en suite, with a bath, and a telephone available for "central connection". The entire building and four of the cottages were equipped with electric lighting supplied by the hotel's own power plant. Water was supplied from a natural spring.

After being shown about the premises the guests were seated before a sumptuous Thanksgiving repast, complete with all the traditional trimmings and the finest delicacies which had been shipped from San Francisco. After dinner, the men retired to one of the western cottages, which had been outfitted as a billiard room. They smoked Cuban cigars and discussed other amenities. There was a stable set up across the road for those who wished to explore the Waialua Sugar Plantation. Canoes and rowboats were available for hire along the stream. The sportsman could book a space at the "Men's Lodge", a thatched roof log cabin located five miles inland at Puukapu, where shooting sports were popular.

There was much to be thankful for in 1918, now that the Great War was over.
